FINAL

MEYER-FRANCE

Premier-Designate
Wants to Make Best Bargain Possible With Reds to End War in Indochina.

PARIS DOUBTS HE CAN WIN MAJORITY

President Coty Accepts
Laniel's Resignation—
Bids to Return to Negotiations in Geneva.

PARIS, June 14 (AP)—Pierre Mendes-France, who wants to negotiate with Ho Chi Minh to end the war in Indochina, agreed today to try to form France's twentieth postwar cabinet.

Many political figures doubted whether the 47-year-old economic and financial expert could get a majority in the National Assembly to go along with his policy, which calls for cutting down expenditures in Indochina and slowing down France's military buildup in Europe.

Mendes-France was nominated last night by President Rene Coty to succeed retiring Premier Laniel, defeated Saturday in a National Assembly confidence vote. The President also accepted
Laniel's resignation.

Mendes-France is a leader of the Assembly's Radical Socialist (moderate) bloc which was credited with bringing down the Laniel government. Following normal procedure, he was the first person called on to try to form a replacement.

Coty delayed accepting Laniel's resignation for a day. It was believed he did not want France to be without a government over the weekend in case important decisions were needed concerning Indochina.

Mendes-France's acceptance was announced a few minutes after he called on the President today at the Elysee Palace. He had conferred with Coty at length last night on the political situation.

The new premier-designate now must consult various party leaders in an attempt to rally sufficient support to insure his confirmation in the Assembly.
He failed by 13 votes to gain confirmation as premier during last summer's 37-day government crisis. That crisis was finally resolved by the selection of Laniel, who served just two weeks short of a year.

Mendes-France has been a sharp critic of the Laniel administration. He has insisted that France must make the best bargain possible with the Communist-led Vietnamese in Indo-China and concentrate on building up its strength in Europe.

Favors Economy.
He also is a staunch advocate of cuts in military spending and government economy as a way to get the nation back on its financial feet. He insists that only after France has a healthy economy can it make its full contribution to Western defense.

In an address last week to the National Assembly on the Indo-China situation, he sharply criticized Foreign Minister George Bidault for not making great enough efforts for peace in the seven-year-old war.

Mendes-France claimed that Bidault had talked to the head of the Vietnamese delegation only once during the seven weeks of the Geneva conference. He sarcastically said that that talk occurred "in a bar at the initia-

DEMOCRATS KEEP HANDS OFF MOVE BY FLANDERS TO OUST MC CARTHY

Leaders' View Is Red-Hunter Is G.O.P. Problem — Vermont Senator Plans Speech on His Proposal.

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—A hands-off policy adopted by the Senate Democratic leadership today apparently all but doomed a move by Senator Ralph E. Flanders (Rep., Vermont), to strip Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin), of his investigating chairmanships.

Senator William Knowland of California, the Republican leader, already had made it clear that—as a representative of the G.O.P. Administration—he did not want to move against McCarthy in the way Flanders suggested on the floor of the Senate last Friday.

However, a remaining key factor in a Senate where Democrats actually outnumber Republicans 48 to 47, was the attitude to be taken by members of the minority party.

Although Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, would make no public statement on the move, he was reliably reported today to have told party colleagues he regards McCarthy as a "Republican problem."

Apparently Johnson is advising Democrats not to give any encouragement to Flanders, who has said he will move by mid-July for action on a motion to strip McCarthy his chairmanships unless the Wisconsin Senator answers questions raised in 1952 by a Senate elections subcommittee about his financial affairs.

Flanders' Proposal. The Flanders motion, which could be called up by any Senator at any time, would remove McCarthy as chairman of the Government Operations Committee, as well as head of its investigations subcommittee. Such a step is rare in Senate history.

McCarthy termed Flanders' criticism of him a "smear," and said the Vermont Senator may be sent to jail. He is 73 years old. So far only one Senator—Copper of Kentucky—a Republican—has publicly lined up behind Flanders' move.

Democratic leaders were said to feel that any time the Republican leadership wants to try to oust McCarthy it can have Democratic help. But many Senate precedents and customs are involved that the Democrats don't want to upset for fear that if or when they return to control of the Senate they might face a challenge to their own organization control.

One of the customs is that the majority party shall control the chairmanships. With only one exception, when a chairman has been removed in the past it has been done on the initiative of the controlling party. The exception came in 1924 when Progressive Republicans revolted against their party's leadership and eventually forced a floor vote in which the late E. D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, South Carolina Democrat, won out.

Missed Point, Democrats Say. Flanders' motion is regarded by many of the Democrats as missing the point of the current televised controversy over "pressure" and "blackmail" charges exchanged between Secretary of the Army Robert T. B. Stevens and McCarthy.

The Flanders resolution deals with questions raised by an elections subcommittee report early in January 1953 on accusations hung between McCarthy and former Senator William Benton (Dem., Connecticut).

Democrats noted that the subcommittee report had wide circulation by the time McCarthy was unanimously elected chairman of the Government Operations Committee later that month after the Republicans took over control of the Senate.

Flanders' basic contention Friday was that McCarthy stood in contempt of the whole Senate by not appearing before the elections subcommittee while it investigated charges against him in 1952. McCarthy has characterized that subcommittee's report as a "smear."

Interviewed last night on "Meet the Press," NBC television show, Flanders declared all McCarthy's words and actions must now "be seen and listened to" in the light of this "unresolved contempt of the Senate."

Flanders said the current investigation has been handled "very badly," that McCarthy has led the subcommittee into "byways, mountains and a quagmire and an ever-expanding area of dubious pertinence."

Flanders said he would discuss on the Senate floor Tuesday his motion to strip McCarthy of all of his committee chairmanships.

Flanders has been told by anonymous telephone callers that he will "be taken care of." Special police precautions have been ordered, although Flanders' assistants said today he considered the calls to be mere "crackpot threats."

Harry T. Laffin, Flanders' administrative assistant, said the Senator has received "six or eight" telephone calls from persons who told him they would "take care of him" or would come to his office to beat him up.

MENDES-FRANCE TRYING TO FORM FRENCH CABINET

ive of M. Molotov (Russian Foreign Minister)."

In seeking Assembly confirmation as Premier last year, Mendes-France said he would support the European Defense Community treaty. French ratification of the pact, which would rearm West Germans in a six-nation army, has been stymied by heavy opposition from many quarters in the Assembly.

Until confirmation of a new government, Laniel and his ministers run their departments on a caretaker basis.

Foreign Minister Bidault planned to return to Geneva to carry on negotiations for peace in Indochina, even though he has no backing from the Assembly.

The task of forming a new cabinet which could win Assembly approval appeared formidable. Any such government would have to be a coalition, like all others since the war. Support would be needed from at least six parties, none of whom see eye to eye.

Almost any possible coalition would have to include both the Popular Republican Movement (M.R.P.) and the Union for Republic and Social Action (U.R.A.S.). But the M.R.P. assembly support the French strategy while the U.R.A.S.—a splinter of followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle—is bitterly opposed to EDC.

There seems no way for any government to contain a majority. The Assembly is divided into two parties. The Socialists and the Communists have almost 200 votes between them. None of the parties will work with the Communists. The Socialists say they prefer to remain outside the government. Most of the other parties have little or no discipline and a full quota of votes cannot be depended upon.

PROSPECT GLOOMY TO U.S. LEADERS

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Top American officials appear to hope Pierre Mendes-France will fall in his bid to become France's new premier.

Almost unanimously, these officials tend to believe his confirmation as premier would weaken the West's position in Asia and probably also in Europe.

The State Department declined to comment on Mendes-France, presumably for fear any word might be interpreted as interference in French internal affairs.

But top officials are anxiously watching developments in France, particularly as they affect Secretary of State Dulles' plan for "united action" in Southeast Asia.

Most officials believe Mendes-France's publicly expressed determination to negotiate a quick peace with the Reds in Indochina would doom any prospects of Allied intervention in the three Indochina states.

They fear any truce, especially if it involves any new concessions by France, might also jeopardize prospects for saving the rest of Southeast Asia.

Offsetting the apparent gloom is a belief that Mendes-France as French premier would hesitate to put through the policies he has advocated while a critic of the former government headed by Joseph Daniel.

Some officials also foresee a possibility that if Mendes-France is approved he might try to strike some sort of deal to end the Indochina war in Asia while advocating approval of the European army project in Europe.

HOUSE PASSES BILL TO BAR PICKETING OF WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 14 (UPI)—The House passed and sent to the Senate today legislation to bar picketing near the White House.

"The President of the United States and the people who visit the White House should not be subjected to the indignities which have existed on certain occasions," said the committee on the District of Columbia, which recommended the legislation.

The committee pointed out that picketing already is barred around the embassies, the Capitol and the Supreme Court building. It said the White House and the President "should be afforded the same protection."

HOUSE GROUP VOTES TO BOOST DAIRY SUPPORTS

Overrides Benson by Increasing Floor Figure to 80 Per Cent Effective Sept. 1.

WASHINGTON, June 14 (UP)—The House Agriculture Committee voted today to override Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and boost price supports for dairy farmers by about 6.5 per cent.

By a vote of 23 to 6, the committee wrote into the new farm bill a mandatory requirement that dairy supports be hiked to 80 per cent of parity, effective Sept. 1.

Dairy supports were set at 90 per cent of parity until last April 1, when Benson slashed them to 75 per cent of parity, the minimum level permitted under present law.

Benson cut supports "because of huge surpluses of butter, cheese and dried milk powder piling up in government hands under the 90 per cent guarantee. The government has had to continue heavy buying of these products to prop prices at the lower level."

Parity is a legal standard for measuring a price "fair" to the farmer in terms of prices he must pay for the things he buys.

There was no way of knowing yet what effect the committee's action — if enacted into law — would have on consumer prices, before voting to boost dairy supports, the committee said.

into the bill a provision that would allow the Government to use a new method of direct subsidy payments to support dairy farmers' income.

Representative August H. Anderson (Rep., Minnesota), spokesman for the dairy bloc and key member of the committee, said the boost in dairy supports should not increase consumer prices, if the new support method is used.

Under the new method approved by the committee last Friday, the Government could pay subsidies to processors so that they could pay farmers higher prices for dairy products than the prices they would have to charge consumers.

The committee voted today to broaden this authority so the subsidy payments could be paid directly to the farmer.

Thus, the Government would have authority to make up the difference between lower market prices and the support price by direct subsidy payments to farmers.

The boost in price support levels to 80 per cent of parity would operate from Sept. 1 to April 1, 1955.

After that, the Secretary would have authority to lower supports again to 75 per cent of parity.

INDOCHINA REDS FAIL IN ATTACK ON HANOI LIFELINE

Driven Back From Post of Hai Duong—Rebels Rip Up Section of Railroad to Coast.

HANOI, Indochina, June 14 (UP)—Communist Indochinese rebels attempted unsuccessfully to capture the most important point on the Hanoi-Haiphong supply lifeline, the French high command said today.

The rebels attacked the post of Hai Duong, 35 miles east of Hanoi, yesterday but were hurled back by French Union defenders.

Rebel guerrillas and regulars also failed to take three other posts in the Red river delta owing to fierce resistance by the garrisons. The high command said 23 rebels were killed and 21 taken prisoner in the fighting for the posts.

(The Associated Press reported that rebel guerrillas ripped up 200 yards of the Hanoi-Haiphong rail line only 11 miles east of Hanoi Saturday night. They used the twisted steel of the rails to barricade the parallel road and scrawled mud warnings on the road that they intend to "kill all French.")

French forces lost 21 men over the weekend in south Indochina where rebel troops seized a post near Trang Bang in the tobacco-rubber country about 30 miles northwest of Saigon.

Supreme Commander Gen. Paul Ely was reported to have given northern commander Gen. Rene Cogan a free hand for defense of the Red river delta.

Reliable forces said Ely and Gen. Raoul Salan, his deputy, approved a number of steps Cogan has instituted to counter any assault launched by rebel Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap.

Ely prepared to fly to Paris Thursday for talks on his plans to keep the rebels out of the delta.

Chinese Aid to Reds Increasing. French Report.

SAIGON, Indochina, June 14 (AP)—The French high command said tonight Chinese military aid to Vietnamese Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap's armies appears to have increased in the last week.

A command spokesman who announced this said he could give no immediate figures or further details. He said the augmented aid is coming over the usual highway routes from China to Vietnam, bases in northern Viet Nam.

The Chinese were supplying Giap an average of 2000 tons of aid a month before the battle of Dien Bien Phu. For that 56-day struggle they greatly increased their deliveries of arms, munitions and heavy artillery.

Gen. Henri Navarre, retiring French commander here, said recently that though Chinese aid had subsided since the fall of the fortress May 7, it still was on a bigger scale than before the battle.

Cambodia King Sure of Support, Wants Election Run by Neutrals

By MARGUERITE HIGGINS

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Staff.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia, June 14—His Majesty Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia said in an interview yesterday that he would embark soon on a personal pilgrimage to the main neutral nations of the world to plead for the immediate dispatch to this Indochinese state of neutral commissions.

Their function, the King stated, would be to testify as to this country's true independence from French rule and to supervise a national referendum on the Communist issue.

The presence of neutral commissions in Cambodia, according to the King, is the only real way to deter the Communists from increasing their invading forces to a point endangering the national existence of this Buddhist nation, the second largest of the three Associated states of Indochina.

In the picturesque royal palace of this capital city, the hard-working young King made plain his country's impatience with the slowness of the United Nations in doing something about Cambodia's plight.

Reds Step Up Attacks. The Communists, based in neighboring Viet Nam, stepped up their attacks on Cambodia a few weeks before the Geneva conference on Indochina opened.

This occupation of some Cambodian territory was used as a basis for Communist claims that a Red Cambodian government, a rival to the King's, was in existence here.

The King's view is that Cambodia, which has a population of 3,000,000 people, has neither the manpower nor the financial strength to wage war indefinitely against this aggressor.

The King feels the only way that Cambodia can get effective action quickly is for him to go after it himself. He is fearful that delay helps only the Reds.

He believes that his treaties of independence with France entitle him fully to take whatever measures in the field of foreign affairs that are necessary to his nation's security.

"The military defense of this country is of great importance, of course, and we are doing everything to strengthen ourselves," the King said.

Seeks Moral Support. "But military strength is not enough. After all, every time I create three battalions of the Communists can, if they wish, create six, and this can go on ad infinitum. What we must do is bring into play world opinion and world moral support for Cambodia, which will show up the Communist aggressors for what they are."

"If nations such as India, Burma, Ceylon, Sweden, and Switzerland station their observers in our principal population centers, the Communists will hesitate a long time before they turn their present invasion into a full-fledged assault. We need moral and legal support for Cambodia from truly distinguished nations whose verdict would be respected by world opinion and whose views the Communists would hesitate to flout."

The King said he planned to begin his pilgrimage "as soon as I obtain all the necessary visas" and indicated that his trip might take him as far afield as South America.

Despite his youth King Sihanouk commands the respect of the Western diplomats because he works hard at his job. In this part of the world it is a refreshing rarity to witness a king who goes into the field to direct his troops and into the villages to talk with his officials.

Support of People. Perhaps that is one reason why in Cambodia there are volunteers for 25 divisions despite the fact there are enough arms so far for only 11. Here the population is eager to defend itself.

"The villagers go after the Communists even with hunting rifles," the King said. "Without vast efforts the Communists cannot keep a foothold here. But unfortunately we know that the Communists, for political reasons such as the Geneva conference, are capable of making vast efforts."

At Geneva, the Western powers have demanded evacuation of Cambodia by the Communists. "The Communist propaganda reproaches my country on two things," the King pointed out. "The first is that we do not have real independence. All I ask is that representatives of neutral nations come here and judge for themselves whether or not we are independent, taking as a criterion the degree of independence existing in the Philippines. I say that we are on the same level as the Philippines."

"Secondly, the Communists declare that the people of Cambodia are in revolt against my government. Let us make the test. All we ask is that neutral nations send soldiers or trained police or even trained civilian observers to our principal cities and provinces. We will hold a referendum under international supervision. We will let the people speak out as to the form of government they wish. I have every confidence in the result."

4 GERMANS GIVEN SEVERE TERMS AS REVOLT LEADERS

East Zone Reds Sentence Them Few Days Before Anniversary of Rioting.

BERLIN, June 14 (AP)—Four Germans charged with leading the June 17 revolt last year against the Soviet zone Communist government were sentenced today to long terms at hard labor.

The East German supreme court imposed sentences of 15 years each on Wolfgang Silgrat and Werner Mangelsdorf, 10 years on Hans Fiedler and five years on Hans Fiedler.

The state charged in the three-day trial that the four were the main organizers of the widespread rebellion and that they were on the payroll of western espionage networks.

Mangelsdorf was quoted by the official ADN news agency as saying a not a revolt was planned for late summer or early fall this year.

The 1953 uprising grew out of workers' resentment over increased work norms and substandard living conditions. It spread through dozens of cities, enlisting an estimated 2,000,000 workers. Scores were shot and hundreds imprisoned after Russian tanks quelled the rioting.

The case against Mangelsdorf and his comrades was apparently timed to remind any disgruntled East Germans that it would be dangerous to note the first anniversary of the rebellion on Thursday.

The United States high commission announced today in Bonn it will observe the anniversary of the 1953 uprising as a holiday.

The West German government also has declared June 17 "Tag der Deutschen Einheit" (Day of German Unity) and made it a national holiday.

Meanwhile, Viktor Dalchau, a West Berliner named by the Russians as contact man for two alleged "American spies," denied any connection with the two or with American intelligence agencies.

THAIS SEIZE RED SUSPECTS

RACKETEER TRIAL PROSECUTOR SAYS CALLANAN GOT $28,000 PAY-OFF

Steamfitter Boss and Four Other Labor Leaders Defendants—
10 Men, Two Women
on Jury in U.S. Court.

Lawrence Callanan, ex-convict boss of the AFL Steamfitters' Union, promised good labor relations to a Tulsa (Okla.) pipeline contractor in exchange for a pay-off of $28,000, Assistant United States Attorney Forrest Boecker said today in the opening statement at the trial of Callanan and four other AFL leaders charged with racketeering.

Boecker told a jury of 10 men and two women that the contractor, O. G. Burden, went to Callanan seeking relief from labor difficulties encountered in a previous construction job in Missouri. The meeting was in May, 1952, he said.

The Government will prove, Boecker said, that Callanan set the rate of pay-off at one cent per foot of the pipeline. Callanan allegedly told Burden that $15,000 would be divided equally among the AFL teamster, building laborer and hoisting engineers unions, and the balance would go to the steamfitters.

The defense objected to Boecker's statement at this point. But after Boecker said the Government would introduce testimony to support the statement, United States District Judge Ruben M. Hulen said he would permit it to stand. Judge Hulen overruled motions by defense attorneys for a continuance and for transfer of the case to another federal district.

Morris A. Shenker, representing Callanan, argued that publicity given the trial in newspapers and radio broadcasts over the weekend contained inflammatory material and matters which will not be presented to the jury.

On trial with Callanan are Carl J. (Dutch) Bianchi, outstate representative of Local 513, Hoisting Engineers; William M. Foster, business representative of Local 110, Building Laborers; Lawrence A. Thompson, former business agent of a Cape Girardeau (Mo.) teamsters' union; and R. M. Secor, business agent of a Farmington (Mo.) building laborers' union.

They are charged in one count with conspiracy to extort $28,016 from the O. R. Burden Construction Corp., of Tulsa, Okla., in interference with interstate commerce. The alleged shake-down occurred in the period between March 1951 and March 1953 while the company was constructing a pipeline extending from Cushing, Okla., to the Sinclair Refining Co., across the river at Hartford.

The second count charges each individually with commission of the same act. The indictment charged the five defendants with acts of violence against officers of the construction firm. As part of the shake-down conspiracy, it charged, the labor bosses created work stoppages and made unreasonable demands for hiring of unnecessary workmen.

The jury and two alternates were selected from an original panel of 50 after the Government challenged six and the defense 10.

List of Jurors.

Peter Parr, Cuba (Mo.) farmer; Ambrose F. Cramer, 4371 Fatima drive, Affton, a baker; Arthur R. Ellis, DeSoto (Mo.) truck driver; James M. Duggan, St. Charles, insurance agent; Cecil M. Francis, 4321A College avenue, merchant.

Francis B. Loughran, 2752 Winnebago street, retired railroad clerk; Joseph M. Mitchell, 5 Ladue lane, Ladue, insurance broker; Mrs. Gladys Nager, St. Genevieve (Mo.) store clerk; Mrs. Mary L. Peachey, 5751 Chippewa street, secretary.

Scenes From Civil Defense Exercise

Employees of St. Louis County Hospital acting as patients being evacuated to make room for persons seriously injured in the hypothetical explosion of an atomic bomb over the downtown area of St. Louis.

Cleveland High School students, taking part in civil defense exercise that started with make-believe dropping of atomic bomb, bend over to protect themselves in basement shelter area.

Harold W. Pirie, 420 Dielman road, Olivette, artist; Ralph H. Rechter, St. Charles, dry cleaner, and Harry C. Robinson, St. Charles, retired.

The alternates were Edwin W. Schneider, Hermann, Mo., a farmer, and Miss Idabel Seller, 3653 South Grand boulevard, retired.

Bianchi, Foster and Thompson were convicted three months ago in another labor racketeering case and each was sentenced to 10 years in prison. They have been held without bond in City Jail pending a hearing of their appeal since being sentenced.

Callanan has been business manager of Steamfitters Local 562 since 1944 when he seized control with the assistance of former Egan gangsters. He has ruled the organization with an "iron fist" and has extended its jurisdiction to most of eastern Missouri.

Special Assessments.

Through special assessments of the membership, Callanan has been able to obtain large sums of money to throw into political campaigns. With his brother, former Sheriff Thomas F. Callanan, in the foreground, he thus was able to dominate the Democratic party in St. Louis until the Callanan forces went down to a decisive defeat in the 1952 primary election.

The indictment is one of four anti-racketeering charges against Callanan, and Secor has been named in two others. Bianchi, Foster and Thompson each have been indicted six times or more for alleged racketeering.

Each count carries a maximum penalty of 20 years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

McKay MOVES TO LEASE OIL AREAS BEYOND TIDELANDS

WASHINGTON, June 14 (UP)—Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay today called for designation of areas in the outer continental shelf off Louisiana and Texas which interested persons would like to have offered for oil and gas leasing.

McKay tentatively set Oct. 13 for receiving competitive bids for leases for areas off Louisiana, and Nov. 9 for areas off Texas.

STATE HOSPITAL ADMISSION LAW IS RULED INVALID FOR AIR ACADEMY

Supreme Court Says 1953 Measure Would Deny Right to Due Process of Law.

By the Post-Dispatch
Jefferson City Correspondent.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 14—A law passed at the 1953 session of the Missouri Legislature to permit voluntary admission of patients to state mental hospitals was declared unconstitutional today by the Missouri Supreme Court.

The court, meeting en banc, held the statute invalid because some of the provisions pertaining to commitment of patients would, in effect, constitute a denial to them of their right to due process of law, guaranteed in the constitution.

Intended to simplify admission processes and hailed by various groups as a great advance for Missouri, the law provided that a person might be admitted to a state mental hospital upon his own application, or upon application of a "friend, spouse, or guardian, or a health or welfare officer upon certification of two physicians."

The court opinion, written by Judge C. A. Leedy Jr. and concurred in by the other judges, held that under such provision a patient might be committed without his knowledge "that impairment of his mental condition was even suspected," and pointed out that it could result in "indeterminate confinement."

"We are clearly of the opinion and so hold," they stated, "that for the statute to thus deprive a person of his liberty without an opportunity to be heard in advance is a commitment, if he or those acting for him desire it, would constitute a denial of due process."

The ruling was handed down in a test suit involving the admission of a Kansas City girl to the state hospital at St. Joseph. The application for admission was made by the girl's mother and was supported by statements from two physicians that she needed treatment. The hospital refused admission on the ground the new law was unconstitutional.

Attorneys for the State Division of Health and Welfare expressed belief during the trial of the case that the law was unconstitutional on the ground specified in the court's opinion.

2 KILLED, 10 HURT IN CRASH OF BUS, AUTOS IN CALIFORNIA

POMONA, Calif., June 14 (AP)—Two persons were killed and at least 10 injured last night when a Phoenix-bound bus and two automobiles collided at the foot of Kellogg hill near here.

Dead are Charles C. Adams, Los Angeles, and an unidentified woman passenger in his car, the California Highway Patrol said. Officers said eight of the 15 passengers aboard the American Trailways bus were hurt, but none seriously. Relays of ambulances brought the injured to Pomona Valley Hospital.

BROWNELL HITS AT MCCARTHY AS 'MISGUIDED'

Says 'Zeal' May Lead Some Into Errors No Less Destructive Than Alien Ideologies.

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Attorney General Brownell declared last night the American system of government cannot survive if any person is "allowed to set himself above the laws of the land" or one branch of government is able to "usurp powers of another branch."

Obviously aiming at Senator McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin), but not mentioning his name, Brownell said in a commencement address to the American University graduating class: "We must be ever vigilant to preserve our liberties from those who owe allegiance to other ideologies and also from those misguided persons whose zeal may lead them into errors no less destructive."

No Return to Vigilance.

While every citizen must assume the burden of preserving "our freedoms and our form of government," he said, "that does not require a return to the vigilance of the frontier. It does require a personal vigilance in all our actions, however small they may seem at the time."

Brownell's address was similar in tone to a statement he issued with White House approval on May 28 saying the executive department has "sole responsibility" for protecting the nation's security.

At that time, Brownell took issue with McCarthy's call to government employees to keep the Senator informed about corruption, craft or treason. The Senator said federal workers were "duty bound" to give him such data even if it contained classified information, that they could not let "loyalty to a superior" interfere.

Tired of Alarms.

Brownell told the graduates "people are tired of alarms and emergencies, some real, some contrived in the past." But, he said, "not in the foreseeable future will foreign policy again become simple."

"There will be no lessening of the problem of defense against foreign enemies and of protection against enemies of our own ranks," the attorney general said.

Brownell said many persons "clamor" that America has failed to live up to its lofty ideals "or their interpretation of those ideals."

"They clamor," he said, "for drastic, immediate action, when a reflective man would realize there are no short cuts, no cure-alls."

An example of the reflective approach, Brownell said, is "how far we have come along the path of progress in a relatively short time" in solving the problem of racial segregation in education.

Supreme Court Ruling.

The recent Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in public schools, Brownell said, "hit with great force the Communist propaganda claims that America 'although preaching the freedom and equality of all men abroad, follows a different code at home.'"

Referring to Chief Justice Warren's opinion in the school segregation decision, which said education must be considered in the light of the present rather than the past, Brownell commented:

"It is indeed fortunate that the provisions of our constitution are not mathematical, impotent and lifeless formulas imposing forever the imprint of the past upon the future."

Brownell said America, in facing the future, "must apply more knowledge and intellect to the problem of protecting our freedom, and less prejudice and emotion."

"We must recognize that the strategy of Communism is the age-old strategy—divide and conquer," he said. "We must not fall for it, nor follow others who fall for it. Our enemies exploit every difference among us. We cannot, as they would like us to do, lose faith in our institutions and in the essential wisdom of free men."

U.S. AND BRITAIN FINISH TALKS ON GUIDED MISSILES

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—The Defense Department today announced the conclusion of four days of talks between Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Duncan Sandys, British Minister of Supply, covering "a number of matters of mutual interest in connection with the development and production of weapons."

An announcement issued simultaneously in Washington and London said Sandys and other British officials also met with United States Army, Navy and Air Force representatives.

"Particular attention was paid to problems relating to the development of guided missiles, and arrangements were considered with the object of securing more active co-operation in this field," it said.

"This should enable both countries to make the most productive use of their available scientific and technical resources and should help to speed up the development and introduction of guided missiles for use in the common defense."

FORT WAYNE, Ind., June 14 (UP)—An auto accident victim died yesterday five days after he was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. Harold B. Koogler, 48 years old, revived when his heart was massaged following the accident, but remained in critical condition in an iron lung until his death.

NICHOLS BACKS BOARD'S REPORT ON OPPENHEIMER

Said to Be More Critical of Scientist Than Gray Committee.

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—The New York Times says today that Maj. Gen. Kenneth D. Nichols, general manager of the Atomic Energy Commission, has drafted his recommendation in the Oppenheimer security case.

"It supports the Gray board's finding that Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer is 'loyal' but should not be retained as a consultant to the commission," says a Washington dispatch to the Times by James Reston.

"Thus, the famous atomic scientist has lost another round—the next to the last—in his long fight to be restored as a reliable servant of his government."

To Be Delivered This Week.

The story says Nichols's recommendation has not been delivered in final form to the members of the AEC, but will be later this week, when the five-man commission will begin the final step in the proceedings. Nichols has discussed his recommendation with commission members.

It is understood that Nichols's letter to the AEC is more critical of Oppenheimer than the majority finding of the Gray board—a three-member special atomic energy commission security board.

The board—headed by Gordon Gray, former Secretary of the Army and now president of the University of North Carolina—recently found unanimously that Oppenheimer is a loyal citizen and it praised his discretion. The board voted 2-to-1, however, that under the Administration's regulations Oppenheimer must be classified as a security risk.

At Princeton, N.J., Oppenheimer's secretary said he would have no comment at this time on the reported Nichols recommendation.

By the United Press.

Commission Reported Split.

AEC officials declined to comment on a New York Times report.

Despite official secrecy, there are persistent reports in atomic circles that the commission itself is sharply divided on the Oppenheimer case, with the prospect that the final decision—expected before the end of this month—will be made by a 3-to-2 vote one way or the other.

All of the commissioners have

TWO MEN SERIOUSLY INJURED IN JEFFERSON COUNTY CRASH

Seven persons were injured, two seriously, when two automobiles collided at the intersection of State Highways 21 and 141 in Jefferson county, Saturday night.

Seriously injured were William H. Stover, 1629A McLaran avenue, driver of one of the machines, who suffered a chest injury, and Robert B. Shepherd, 8203 Julian avenue, Wellston, fractured leg. Shepherd's wife and Stover's wife and 12-year-old daughter, Kathy, suffered minor injuries. Stover is an advertising salesman for the Post-Dispatch.

The accident occurred when Stover's machine, westbound, on Route 141, was struck by an automobile driven south on Route 21 by Loren T. Bailey, 538 North Harrison avenue, Kirkwood. Bailey and his wife, a passenger in the automobile, suffered minor injuries. The injured were taken to St. Anthony Hospital.

been busy in recent days with the task of preparing to act as judges on the controversial case. The task involves studying 3800 pages of testimony and 3000 pages of reports and exhibits from the long closed hearings of the special board.

Informants said no decision has been reached on whether to make public the testimony given before the Gray board. But it was understood that some AEC officials favor such action, before or at least simultaneously with announcement of the AEC decision.

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill., June 14 (AP)—Mrs. Verna Best, 28 years old, known on the stage and TV as Kay Carroll, and John Sommers, 32, both of Chicago, drowned yesterday in Liberty lake.

Sommers, a beer salesman, and Mrs. Best were on an outing with Louis Best, her husband, and Thomas Peterson, also of Chicago, when the accident occurred. Both bodies were recovered.

Eyewitnesses said Mrs. Best and Sommers were wading about 20 feet from shore when apparently they hit a sudden drop-off in the lake.

BANANA STRIKERS IN GUATEMALA GET NEW PAY CONTRACT

GUATEMALA CITY, June 14 (AP)—The end of a three-week-old strike by 3000 Communist-banned banana workers appeared a possibility today following the signing of a government-negotiated wage contract by representatives of workers and the United Fruit Co. Company officials said the new contract meets 80 per cent of the wage and benefit boost demands made by the strikers. The rank and file of the workers still must approve the agreement before it becomes effective. The walkout started May 19, crippling United Fruit's north coast operations. In addition to backing up their demands for increased pay, the strikers said they wished to demonstrate sympathy for United Fruit workers on strike in neighboring Honduras since April 30. Negotiations looking toward a settlement of the Honduran walkout have been resumed after a temporary breakdown.

premature to be talking of Schine's going overseas since Schine had not completed his basic Army training.

Carr denied also that Cohn threatened he would "get" Maj. Gen. Cornelius E. Ryan, commander of Fort Dix, for the "scheme" he had permitted Schine to be treated while taking basic training at that post.

Carr, a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent for 10 years before joining McCarthy's staff, was called to the witness chair because McCarthy was "catching up on his sleep" after a speech-making trip to the Middle West over the weekend.

McCarthy came in midway in the morning session of the hearings and took a seat and listened as Carr went on with his testimony.

(The United Press account said Carr testified also that high officials in the Eisenhower Administration took control of the Army's developing controversy with McCarthy last winter.

Carr said Adams told him

March 5 "the matter had been taken out of his hands entirely." He quoted Adams further as saying the dispute, then on the verge of breaking out publicly for the first time, was "a high policy matter."

(In January, Carr said, Adams told him he would "stop at nothing" to block McCarthy subcommittee subpoenas for members of the Army Loyalty Board. This, he quoted Adams as saying, was "a high Administration decision."

Then on March 5, Carr said, Adams told him bluntly "the matter had been taken out of his hands entirely" and was a high policy matter.

Thus, the mystery of why Adams voluntarily testified about a Jan. 21 meeting of high Administration officials in the office of Attorney General Herbert Brownell was cleared up today—the McCarthy camp already knew about it.

After Adams' testimony, President Eisenhower stopped further testimony about the meeting by an executive order. The order was signed by the President and was not made public.

in the light of subsequent developments.

The examination of Carr was conducted by Thomas B. Pre-witt, assistant counsel for the hearings subcommittee. He had concluded both his direct examination and cross-questioning of Carr when the luncheon recess was taken.

Testifies on Auto Incident.
One of the many points on which Carr disputed testimony from Adams was an account Adams had given of Cohn's outing Senator McCarthy from Cohn's automobile in New York City. Carr said he was in the car and Cohn never "ejected" the Senator.

On another point, Adams had testified that on Dec. 17 McCarthy reprimanded Carr because of alleged intervention by the subcommittee staff on behalf of Schine.

Carr insisted McCarthy at that time did not even discuss the Schine matter with him. He said McCarthy later brought up rumors that the press was going to make trouble about Schine's treatment at Fort Dix. Carr later gave McCarthy a memo saying there had been no improper intervention.

Carr said he dictated this and other memos "to convey information and keep a record."
Carr testified Schine had worked directly under McCarthy's supervision for the subcommittee and that Schine had provided "great assistance" in subcommittee investigations of Monmouth, the Government Printing Office, the Voice of America and other subjects.

In response to a question from Prewitt, Carr said, however, that Schine spent more time in New York than he did in Washington and, as Carr understood, conducted private business in New York.

Schine, wealthy New Yorker, was on the McCarthy subcommittee's staff as an unpaid consultant until drafted Nov. 3.

Prewitt asked Carr about the "work product" of Schine for the subcommittee after Schine was drafted.

The McCarthy camp contends Schine did important work during this period and was on pass from Fort Dix, only for subcommittee business. The Army has introduced records showing that on at least one occasion Schine and Cohn had a hotel dinner date with two girls.

Carr said Schine interviewed some witnesses and confidential informants while he was on pass from Dix, including one informant who insisted on talking only to Schine. Carr said these were "follow-up" interviews stemming from Schine's earlier work for the subcommittee.

Prewitt brought out that there were no written memos or documents reflecting these interviews by Schine and questioned this practice. Prewitt asked whether Schine could "retain in his head" all the information he gathered.

Carr replied that Schine enjoyed the information to Cohn who then used it for the subcommittee. He said investigators frequently made no written records of interviews, but used the information in questioning witnesses during formal hearings, and the hearings of course produced a written record.

Helped Complete Reports.
Prewitt wanted to know why other investigators couldn't handle the interviews conducted by Schine. Carr repeated that one informant would talk only with Schine, and that it was necessary to follow up work done previously only by Schine.

Carr added, however, that the interviews were only "incidental" and that Schine's main work after he was drafted was to help complete reports on subcommittee investigations in which Schine had worked.

Prewitt asked about a monitored call Nov. 7 in which Mc-Carthy told Stevens that Cohn was "completely unreasonable" on the subject of Schine.

"As far as I am concerned, he was never unreasonable with me," Carr testified.

Prewitt asked if Cohn ever was "unreasonable" on the subject of Schine.

"No, sir," was the reply.
Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Washington), told reporters that Carr's disclosure of documents supporting the contrary positions taken by the two witnesses would make it difficult to prove any perjury charges.

"I can see how there could be an honest misunderstanding between men as to what was said in conversations several months ago," Mundt commented.
"They agree generally on the subjects that were discussed, but they don't agree on what was said."

Carr said Adams did not seem to be facetious on some of the occasions when he said Adams spoke of Schine as "the hostage."

Carr said he recalls a Dec. 9 incident when Adams asked him
"the hostage was making out" in basic training at Fort Dix.

Adams, he said, linked the remark with a question as to "what's there in it for us if we do something for Schine."

Carr said Adams' language angered him, and that he spoke sharply to the Army counselor, then wrote a memorandum on the incident and gave it to Mc-Carthy.

Carr testified that the incident occurred in a corridor of the Senate office building.

On the same day, he said, he saw in Adams' hands a pad of paper on which someone had drawn a rough map of the United States, which Carr said he observed Adams dividing into rectangular zones for questioning Cohn on offer of Trade.

He said he saw the map as he overtook Adams and Cohn as the two were walking in the corridor. He quoted Cohn as saying to him that "John is trying to trade us some homosexuals in the Air Force for information about our next investigation of the Army."

Carr also disputed Adams' testimony that:

1. On Nov. 3 Carr heard Cohn tell Adams the Army was in for a long series of investigations if Adams insisted that Schine must be "treated like any other soldier."

2. Carr warned Adams the Army was "in for trouble" as long as Schine's assignment was unsatisfactory to Cohn.

3. In telephone calls Carr made to Adams at Sioux Falls, S. D., on Dec. 20 and 23, "the principal subject of the calls seemed to be Schine."

Carr said he could not recall that Schine was even mentioned on either call.

Carr quoted Dirksen.

Carr related that on Jan. 20 he prepared subpoenas for Army Loyalty Board members, before he could serve them Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois, telephoned Jan. 22 to ask that the subpoenas be held up.

Carr quoted Dirksen as saying Adams had informed him that if the subpoenas were issued, an "embarrassing report" would be put out about Cohn.

Carr said the subpoenas have never been issued.

The following week, Carr said, Adams asked him if Cohn "were angry about the threatened report."

Carr said he replied that Cohn was angry, that he thought it was "a dishonest set" on Adams' part and that he would have nothing further to do with the Army counselor.

Carr quoted Adams as saying he was sorry because he liked Cohn personally.

Schine As Aid to Stevens.

Carr testified that Secretary Stevens talked at a "Pentagon conference Oct. 2 of using Schine as his personal observer at Army Intelligence schools, responsibility Stevens.
Carr also swore:
1. That on at least three occasions Army officials commended efforts to sidetrack Senator McCarthy's investigation of Communists in the Army with promises of special Army treatment for Schine.

2. That Secretary Stevens suggested the McCarthy subcommittee "take the heat off" the Army by looking into security risks in defense plants, the Air Force and the Navy. Stevens had denied this.

3. That Adams after failing in repeated attempts to get the McCarthy subcommittee to drop its investigation of the Army, claimed he was taking "some control" over Army assignments for Pvt. Schine.

Carr cited several occasions in which he said Stevens and Adams tried to persuade McCarthy to drop his investigation of alleged subversion at secret radar laboratories at Fort Monmouth and let the Army itself take over the inquiry.

Dinner at Adams' Home.
On one such occasion, Carr testified, he and Cohn had dinner at Cohn's New York City home on Oct. 21 and then went to a prize fight with Adams.

Carr testified Adams "stated he wanted the hearings on the Monmouth situation ended" by saying the military committee should turn the investigation "over to them."

At the same time, Carr testified, Adams reported he was taking over some of the control of assignments for Schine.

Carr said Adams explained that prior to that time "the Schine matter" was being handled by Army personnel but that now he (Adams) "was taking

Testifying about the Oct. 2 conference he and Cohn had with Stevens, Carr said Stevens brought up the subject of Schine by saying the military committee consultant was not going to get any Army commission.

Carr related that Stevens said he would make arrangements, once Schine was drafted, that would be both advantageous to Schine and the Army.

Carr quoted Stevens as saying he was not satisfied with Army Intelligence personnel and would place Schine in various Intelligence schools "to observe" and report his observations directly back to the Secretary of the Army.

Carr said he thought Cohn felt this would be "perfectly all right with him."

'Blackout Order.'
Carr said the Oct. 2 conference at the Pentagon was primarily to discuss Maj. Gen.
Richard C. Partridge, chief of Army Intelligence, and what Carr termed a "blackout order" on personnel sought for questioning by the committee in connection with starting an investigation of subversives at Monmouth.

Carr said he was well satisfied when Stevens picked up the telephone and told Maj. Gen.
Kirke B. Lawton, commander at Monmouth, to make personnel available to the committee staff for questioning.

Carr testified, however, that at one point in the conversation, Stevens told Lawton: "No, no, I didn't say that." Carr said he could hear only Stevens' end of the conversation.

Carr said it was at a Pentagon luncheon on Nov. 6 that Stevens suggested inquiries into the Air Force and the Navy to ease pressure on the Army.

He named this as one of the efforts to stop the investigation of the Army.

Attending the luncheon, Carr said, were Stevens, Adams, Mc-Carthy, Cohn and himself.

Carr related that Stevens
asked how long public hearings into alleged Communist infiltration of the radar laboratories at Monmouth could be expected to run, and that Stevens was "very upset" when McCarthy told him the hearings might last for six weeks.

Carr testified that Stevens said then that if the hearings lasted that long he would have to resign.

Stevens asked if there was some way the subcommittee could "take the pressure off the Army" by holding hearings in other fields, Carr said.

"No, Whitehouse," Carr replied, told Stevens there would be "no whitewash." Thereupon, Carr said, Stevens suggested there were security situations in the Defense Department, the Air Force and the Navy which could be looked into.

When Adams nodded and said he would be able to furnish information, Carr said, Stevens commented that this "might be the answer to the problem."

Both Stevens and Adams have sworn they never made any suggestion that the McCarthy subcommittee call off its hunt for Reds in the Army and turn its attention to the Defense Department, the Air Force and the Navy.

Carr related the previously told story that Adams "sounded out" McCarthy on how the Senator would react if Lawton were removed as commanding general at Monmouth.

He quoted Adams as saying on Nov. 24 he could give Carr some "good word" about a weekend pass for Schine if Carr could give him some "good word" about Lawton.

The McCarthy camp charges that Stevens considered relieving Lawton of his command because of the general's co-operation with the Wisconsin Senator's investigation. Stevens denies that. Stevens said he was displeased by a speech Lawton made suggesting that graduates of certain colleges had a predilection for Communism, but decided against relieving him.

Prewitt, questioning Carr, asked that long he would have

to resign.

Carr Testifies Adams Planned Schine's Role

"No, sir, not to my knowledge," Carr replied. Carr disputed a contention by Adams that on a train ride from New York to Washington on Nov. 25, Carr and Adams talked almost exclusively about the Schine case.

Discussed Many Matters

"I say that isn't so," Carr testified. He said he and Adams did mention Schine but they also talked about Lawton, the Monmouth investigation, their children, their boyhood, and many other matters.

Throughout their relations, Carr testified, Adams repeatedly suggested "now would be a good time" for the subcommittee to drop its hearings on Monmouth and let the Army take over the inquiry.

Carr told about a Nov. 16 Pentagon meeting with Stevens after Stevens had told a press conference he (Stevens) knew of no current espionage at Monmouth. Carr said Stevens was "very disturbed" and said he hadn't intended to affront the Senator.

Carr testified Stevens was "most anxious to do whatever he could to straighten out the matter with Senator McCarthy," and that Stevens offered to fly to New York to talk to the Senator, which Stevens did the next day.

Prewitt wanted to know if Carr's testimony was that Schine was "indispensable."

"No, sir, it is not," Carr replied.

Carr referred to Adams's talk of Schine's going overseas as "baiting" of Cohn.

Prewitt wanted to know what Cohn's reaction was to Adams's "baiting."

"It annoyed him (Cohn)," Carr replied. "Mr. Cohn felt that Schine, as a committee consultant, should not be discriminated against by the Army."

"Was this a sensitive subject with Mr. Cohn?" Prewitt asked. "I wouldn't say it was," Carr replied. "Once in a while it would get under his skin, as it would anybody else's."

Carr was accused along with McCarthy and Cohn of exerting improper pressures in Schine's behalf, but after the Army presented its case, the hearings subcommittee voted 4 to 3 to drop Carr as a principal.

The vote was on party lines with Republicans in the majority.

As today's session got under way, Mundt said he "hopes and believes" the hearings will wind up this week.

Both McCarthy and Cohn are scheduled to take the stand again later.

Unless the subcommittee conducting the hearings reverses itself, there will be no further witnesses.

Mundt said he has as yet received no word that either P. Schine or Clark Clifford, one-time special counsel to former President Truman, wants to testify.

Mundt has said that if either writes him a letter asking to appear on the stand, he will give the request his "consideration."

McCarthy has been demanding that Clifford testify. He contends there are indications that Clifford influenced the Army to bring its charges against him and his staff.

McCarthy Denies Pressure.

McCarthy contends there was no improper pressure on behalf of Schine.

Carr, under questioning by Prewitt, said he joined the McCarthy subcommittee July 16, 1953, after more than 10 years of investigating Communists for the FBI.

He said one or two weeks later, he had a conference with McCarthy and Cohn, and that Cohn filled him in on "preliminary work on Communist infiltration of the Army."

Carr said Cohn reported "some evidence there had been infiltration of G-2, the intelligence section of the Army." He said Cohn had some information also about Communist infiltration of two Army agencies in the New York City area, the Signal Corps and the Quartermaster Corps.

Carr said Cohn was investigating also "use of Communist line literature" or Communist authors in indoctrination materials used by the intelligence unit of the Army.

Prewitt's Split Report.

Before today's session, Senator John L. McClellan of Arkansas, senior Democrat on the hearings subcommittee, told reporters he thought there undoubtedly would be a split report from the group.

He commented:

"It would be a happy result to have a unanimous verdict, but the disagreements and the partisan votes that have been taken thus far leave that as only a faint hope."

McClellan cited in that connection the 4-to-3 vote that decided against calling Schine as a witness but left the way open for Schine to testify if he asks an opportunity to tell his story.

McCarthy has undergone more than a day of cross-examination by special subcommittee counsel Ray H. Jenkins, the subcommittee members and Army counsel Welch. But at least two more days of questioning seemed ahead of him. Cohn, too, is scheduled to return for more questioning.

The same vote that dropped Carr as a principal also removed Assistant Secretary of Defense H. Struve Hensel. Hensel is accused by the McCarthy side of seeking to discredit the subcommittee.

Hope Voiced by Mundt.

McClellan's prediction that conflicting reports will be filed when the hearings finally end ran counter to a hope voiced by Mundt over the weekend. Mundt said he still hopes for a single over-all report, perhaps with some dissenting views on a few aspects of the case.

Told of Mundt's comment, McCarthy said: "Every vote on every important question that has arisen so far has been along party lines and I expect that formula will hold when the final report is made."

There were indications that, when the hearings end, the Democratic members of the subcommittee will join in a report likely to be highly critical of McCarthy and Cohn. It may also criticize Stevens and take a crack at Republicans generally for the controversy.

Republicans have shown some signs they will not be too tough on either McCarthy or Stevens, but will be inclined to stress that there has been a misunderstanding which should not be allowed to interfere with the work of rooting out Communists where they can be found.

Mundt, in saying he had hope for a single over-all report, said he saw no reason to try to play politics with facts that "have been so widely and fairly presented to the public."

He said the hearings have been viewed by millions on television and he didn't see "how a partisan twist" could put the facts to advantage of anybody.

Jackson's Contentions.

Senator Jackson said he saw no reason why the subcommittee could not make a report before Congress adjourns. He made no forecast on the contents.

Even before the report is written, Jackson said, "an early order of business" for the regular subcommittee should be action on staff members.

Jackson said the rules under which Democrats returned to the subcommittee in late January after about six months' absence provide that staff employees have to be approved by the subcommittee. He said this has not been done so far. This was taken as a hint at a possible Democratic move aimed at replacing Cohn as chief counsel.

McCarthy said on his arrival in Washington early today, he had not heard rumors that Cohn might be planning to resign from the subcommittee counsel's post to spend full time in private law practice.

Cohn himself told reporters in New York he has no such intention. "I expect to be in Washington a long time, to fight subversion and Communism," he said.

'LIMELIGHT SEEKERS' ASSAILED BY ADAMS

Eisenhower Aid Tells Bates College Seniors Honest Criticism Is Good.

LEWISTON, Me., June 14 (AP)—Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's chief assistant, spoke out yesterday against "limelight seekers" who use their own means, "however fair or foul," to gain their ends.

Without saying to whom he referred, Adams told the graduating class at Bates College's eighty-eighth commencement:

"You will be aware of those who claim to have a monopoly upon wisdom of whatever political vintage. In all our history there has been no greater combination of insolence and iniquity than the sanctimony of that group who assumed the role of sole judge of how to right a wrong or assumed the holy right to use its own means, however fair or foul, to gain its ends."

Adams, a former New Hampshire Governor, advised the seniors that, in evaluating criticism, they should remember the adage: "What Peter says about Paul tells more about Peter than it tells about Paul."

"When hatred or demagogical tricks are apparent in current political debates," he said, "note the comments portray not so much the character of the target as the real character of the critic."

Stressing the American right to criticize, Adams said:

"Remember that criticism is the power to expose derelictions and is often the genesis of reform. Too, often it points to errors, and stimulates the public to require correction, and rid the public service of blunders and incompetents."

"Yet, liberty is not license," he said, adding:

"In the protection accorded free speech, the good citizen will have a sense of public responsibility and moral integrity in the exercise of that freedom."

"Through the medium of news stories of tremendous circulation; syndicated columns, and well-publicized news letters, carefully prepared commentaries, and even deliberate spreading of mendacities in political criticism may now be quickly and widely spread. Against such the intelligence of the citizen listener and reader is his own best defense."

"The modern press believes in the Pulitzer insistence upon accuracy. It recognizes, of course, its duty to publish news of significance, interest and importance."

"The newsworthiness of political criticisms have often tempted crafty sensationalists to beguile the attention of reporters, editors and cameramen."

"The surest proof of journalism's sense of responsibility is its constant effort to present both sides. This credit applies as well to the radio and to television."

The college awarded Adams an honorary doctorate in laws.

5 STOLEN AUTOMOBILES ARE FOUND IN ONE BLOCK

Five stolen automobiles were recovered by St. Louis police yesterday in the 6100 block of Gambleton place, following information furnished by University City police that a stolen machine had been seen parked there.

Three of the automobiles, all reported stolen within the last week, were parked on one side of the street and the other two were on the other side.

Owners of the machines are: Vernon Duvall, 520 Westgate avenue, University City; Barney Moss, 5939 DeGiverville avenue; Samuel Hoffman, 1071 Midland avenue, University City; Suzanne Barker, 7537 Parkdale avenue, Clayton; and Porter Long, 718 Hamilton avenue.

5 REDS HERE SEEK RELEASE ON BAIL PENDING APPEAL

The five Communists convicted of conspiring to advocate forcible overthrow of the Government asked the United States Court of Appeals today to permit their release on bail pending appeal.

They have been held in City Jail since June 4, when prison sentences were imposed upon them by United States District Judge Roy W. Harper, who denied bail pending appeal.

William Senter, Robert Mancowitz, Marcus A. Murphy and James F. Forest were each sentenced to five years in prison. Forest's wife, Dorothy Rose, received a three-year term.

FOUR HELD ON SUSPICION OF SELLING MINORS LIQUOR

Vincent Palazzolo and Joseph J. Ruffino, co-owners of the Brown Derby Tavern, 615-17 North Eighth street, and two waitresses were arrested early yesterday and booked suspected of selling liquor to minors.

Police raided the establishment following complaints that minors frequented the bar. Seven minors in the tavern at the time of the raid also were arrested under an ordinance making under-age drinkers liable to penalties.

The waitresses arrested were Mrs. Myrtle E. Knudsen and Mrs. Rose L. Nickens.

HOUSE AND SENATE LEADERS EXPECT TO ADJOURN JULY 31

WASHINGTON, June 14 (UP)—House and Senate leaders reported today after their weekly legislative conference with President Eisenhower that they expect Congress to adjourn July 31.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California and House G.O.P. Floor Leader Halleck of Indiana said they thought Congress would clean up its work by that deadline unless an emergency develops.

NEW FLAG PLEDGE MADE OFFICIAL BY EISENHOWER

WASHINGTON, June 14 (UP)—A new pledge of allegiance to the flag, adding the words "under God," was signed into law today by President Eisenhower. Henceforth the pledge will conclude with the words: "... one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

A few hours before the President signed the law, Senator Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, and Representative Rabaut (Dem.), Michigan, solemnly read the new pledge as a new flag, donated by the American Legion, was raised over the Capitol dome.

The joint reading of the pledge by Ferguson and Rabaut formally ended a dispute between the two over authorship of the Congressional measure. Ferguson and Rabaut sponsored identical changes in the wording of the flag pledge. Rabaut blocked House approval of the Senate measure last Monday on the ground his bill had been introduced a year ago and should be the one enacted. The Senate bowed to Rabaut's pride of authorship the next day and approved and sent the change to the White House.

President at Burning Tree. WASHINGTON, June 14 (UP)—President Eisenhower scheduled an afternoon of golf today at the Burning Tree Club in nearby Maryland. Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower was playing today in lieu of his usual Wednesday afternoon game.

SENATOR DOUGLAS URGES U.S. 'SHOCK THERAPY' FOR REDS

CHICAGO, June 14 (UP)—Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, suggested that the United States "give the Communist governments shock treatments," including withdrawal of recognition.

Douglas said yesterday such "treatment" would include "withdrawing recognition from them, closing up their consulates and embassies and spy nests in this country, and withdrawing trade wherever we can compound their difficulties by doing so."

Douglas, speaking before the Polish National Alliance, the Danish National Committee and the Latvian National Center, said this kind of "therapy" could restore sanity to Communist nations.

Smog Boosts Airport Business. BANNING, Calif., June 14 (UP)—It is an ill smog that doesn't boost business at Banning airport—provided the smog is over Los Angeles. Municipal airport officials estimated 125 planes a week land here instead of at Los Angeles because their pilots don't like flying into the haze over the bigger city.

GRUENTHER SAYS NATO FORCES GIVE SOME INSURANCE

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., June 14 (AP)—Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme commander of North Atlantic Treaty forces, said yesterday NATO forces in Europe are strong enough now to "give us a certain insurance against a so-called miscalculated or accidental war."

Gruenther, awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree at Williams College's 165th commencement, said NATO forces today are "three or four times what they were when Gen. Eisenhower (Gruenther's predecessor) arrived in Paris in January 1951 to organize SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe)."

"It would be nothing short of a miracle," he said, "if we had in Europe at this time sufficient force to be certain of resisting successfully an all-out Soviet attack. That is why we have requested a German contribution."

"But, even without that contribution, and considering the present state of our forces, we have created a shield of such strength that the Soviets probably do not have in occupied Europe a force strong enough to be certain of defeating ours."

PUERTO RICAN ON TRIAL DEFIES JUDGE'S ORDERS

Refuses to Name Accomplices in House Shooting but Later Implicates Them.

WASHINGTON, June 14 (UP)—Puerto Rican revolutionary Irving Flores Rodriguez defied a federal judge today and refused to name in court his three confederates in the March 1 shooting in the House of Representatives.

"You must answer," demanded Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff. "I direct you to answer."

"Yo me abstengo (I abstain)," Flores replied in Spanish.

Threats of contempt of court and advice from chief defense counsel F. Joseph Donohue left the Puerto Rican unmoved. He refused on "moral principles" to give the names.

In later testimony, however, Flores—without using the names—implicated Lolita Lebron, Rafael Cancel Miranda, and Andres Figueroa Cordero as the ones with whom he plotted the March 1 shooting as a "patriotic demonstration."

All four are on trial in United States District Court for the attack which wounded five Congressmen. If convicted, each faces a jail term up to 75 years.

Judge Holtzoff, angered by Flores' defiance, abandoned his efforts to make the Puerto Rican answer questions. But he hinted any eventual sentence might include an additional penalty for contempt.

Flores testified in Spanish, with his answers translated by an interpreter. He said he bought his weapon about five months ago, planned the trip from New York to Washington with the other three the night before the attack. He said he aimed "down" when he began to fire from the gallery.

On cross-examination, Prosecutor Leo A. Rover, demanded: "Did you not appreciate that firing a pistol into the House Chamber might wound or kill some congressmen?"

"That is very natural," he replied indifferently. He said he was carrying out a demonstration on behalf of Puerto Rican independence—and all the rest was incidental.

EX-CONVICT GETS 9 YEARS FOR $1600 CHURCH ROBBERY

Thurman R. St. Clair, ex-convict who robbed St. James the Greater Catholic Church of $1600 and forced a priest to drive him to East St. Louis, was sentenced to nine years in prison today by Circuit Judge James F. Nangle on a plea of guilty.

Two years ago St. Clair was found guilty of the same charge by a jury and was given a life sentence, but the conviction was set aside by the Missouri Supreme Court on a technicality. He was acquitted by a federal court jury on a kidnapping charge growing out of the same incident.

St. Clair, using a dress sword and a pen knife as weapons, forced the Rev. Lawrence C. Nibberich, assistant pastor at the church, 1349 Tenth avenue, to open two church safes Aug. 27, 1951. He then ordered the priest to drive to East St. Louis, where he left Father Nibberich frused in the back seat of the automobile in the Broadview Hotel parking lot.

RAIN BARS SEARCH OF PLANE WRECKAGE ON PEAK IN JAPAN

TOKYO, June 14 (AP)—Search parties may have come within a half mile of the wrecked Navy PBM patrol bomber Yakushima Sunday before foul weather forced them back, the Navy said yesterday.

Seventeen crewmen and passengers were missing and feared dead in the wreckage strewn on the slopes of a 6300-foot tree-covered island peak off southern Japan. The Navy said rain squalls prevented helicopters from guiding ground parties struggling through dense cedar forest.

The plane, en route to the Philippines and Hong Kong, disappeared Wednesday. There was no sign of life around the wreckage.

FURNITURE WORKERS URGE 35-HOUR WEEK TO MAKE JOBS

CLEVELAND, June 14 (AP)—One of every six furniture industry workers is jobless, and thousands of others are working only part-time, international officers of the CIO United Furniture Workers report.

Union president Morris Pizer and Fred Fulford, secretary treasurer, called for a 35-hour work week to provide jobs for half of the 60,000 industry workers they said are unemployed. They also urged an hourly minimum wage of $1.25.

About 200 delegates representing 45,000 members of the union begin a five-day convention here today. Pizer and Fulford declared the day of automatic wage increases is past, and new wage demands must be won by strike measures.

STEVENSON SAYS CONFORMITY IS MODERN HAZARD

More of Threat Than 'Flesh and Devil'—Cites Oppenheimer Case as Example.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., June 14 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said in a commencement address at Vassar College today that the "corruption of conformity" is one of the "hazards of growing up in this turbulent century."

He told the 269 members of the graduating class that this hazard "is a more certain threat to the validity of your education and to your immortal soul than the blandishments of the flesh and the devil."

The 1952 Democratic presidential candidate spoke of "the strange things that have been going on in our country," and said:

"The Oppenheimer case even suggests a weird new science of 'security' which would deny us the security of science."

Stevenson's reference was to the barring of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, famed atomic physicist, from the nation's secret atomic files. A three-member special Atomic Energy Commission security board recently found Oppenheimer to be a loyal citizen but decided, 2-to-1, that he is not a good security risk and recommended that he continue to be barred from using secret government files for nuclear research.

Stevenson said that women frequently exhibit a moral toughness and resistance to conformity which embarrasses the so-called stronger sex.

Urging the graduates to do their own thinking and to reach their own conclusions, and then stand by them, Stevenson called fear "the miasma of the soul."

He added that "corruption is complete when expediency and fear, rather than conscience and courage, dictate our course."

Stevenson told the graduates to "align yourselves with the forces of courage—of non-conformity—on the side of the Hebrew prophets and the Christian martyrs who gave us our spiritual heritage, the side of Roger Williams who defended our rights to the freedom of conscience, the side of Jeffersons and Franklins who wrote into the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution our cherished guarantees of individual liberty."

Stevenson called on the graduates to line up on the side of "all Americans who have risen up in times of crisis and acted in defense of freedom—the side of all the gallant great of the frail America of yesterday who did not fear freedom as some seem to fear it in the mighty America of today."

SUNSTROKE KILLS BABY LEFT IN AUTO FOR HOUR

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 14 (UP)—A 4-month-old baby, left for an hour in an auto in a sweltering sun, died today of sunstroke.

The baby was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hofman of Toronto, German immigrants who visited Niagara Falls on their first Sunday in Canada.

The Hofmans said they left the car parked in the shade with the baby asleep in the back seat. While they were away, the sun shifted and its rays beat in on the baby. Efforts to save the baby by putting it in an oxygen tent in the Niagara General Hospital were unsuccessful.

QUEEN INVESTS CHURCHILL WITH ORDER OF GARTER

WINDSOR, England, June 14 (UP)—Queen Elizabeth II today formally invested Prime Minister Churchill with the Order of the Garter, highest personal honor a British monarch can bestow.

In a private investiture ceremony in the throne room of ancient Windsor castle, the Queen handed Churchill the golden insignia of the Order of the Garter and personally buckled below his left knee the blue velvet garter of the order. She pinned to his chest the star of the garter and hung around his neck the golden collar.

Then two fellow knights draped his shoulders with the blue mantle of the order. This afternoon at St. George's Chapel Churchill was to take his seat in the choir and so be formally installed in the order, a brotherhood of chivalry inspired by King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table.

The Queen bestowed these honors on Churchill a year ago and he wore the decorations at her coronation. Today's formal ceremonies set the seal on his Garter knighthood.

CHIANG'S AIR CHIEF WANTS SABRES TO MEET MIG THREAT

TAIPEH, June 14 (AP)—The chief of Nationalist China's air force yesterday urged the United States to send him 160 Sabre jets to meet the threat of a Red MIG jet buildup south of Shanghai.

Gen. Wang (Tiger) Shu-ming said the buildup began with Russian help after the cease-fire in Korea and that now the Chinese Reds have 350 planes, 200 of them MIGs, in the Shanghai area alone.

TCP releases power other fuels hold captive

Shell-discovered additive, TCP*, now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, stops pre-ignition and misfiring, gives up to 15% unexpected power

Re-powers your engine within 400 miles by neutralizing engine deposits

As much as 15% of the power your engine could deliver is being held captive—needlessly!

Engine deposits—responsible for the greatest power loss in today's cars—can now be neutralized by the Shell-discovered additive, TCP.

How deposits steal power

You see, deposits of lead and carbon build up in your engine, stealing power with every mile you drive. In combustion chambers, these deposits glow red-hot when you step on the gas to pass a car or climb a hill. The "hot spots" set off the fuel charge before the piston is ready for its power stroke. This is pre-ignition: power works against you instead of for you.

And that's not all! Deposits also accumulate on the tips of spark plugs and prevent the spark from doing its job. The deposits actually conduct electricity away from the electrodes. This results in misfiring. To you it means wasted fuel, wasted power.

Now TCP overcomes this power loss

But this need not happen, since these twin enemies to full engine power can now be overcome by Shell Premium

Gasoline with TCP! Here's how it works:

TCP additive reforms the character of engine deposits. Instead of glowing red-hot in combustion chambers, the deposits are "fireproofed." Pre-ignition is prevented; power works for you again! Instead of causing the spark plug to short-circuit, the deposits become non-conductors. The spark goes back to work—turning fuel into power! And the plugs themselves last up to 2½ times longer.

A tune-up without tools

In a nutshell, TCP additive lets your engine have all the knock-suppressing benefits of modern fuel without power-wasting side effects. In fact, Shell Premium with TCP can give you up to 15% more power...power the deposits have formerly taken away. That's why you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful.

But remember deposits constantly build up. So continue to use Shell Premium with TCP to keep getting its full benefits. You'll find it now at all Shell Dealer Stations.

WOMAN IS KILLED BY RUNAWAY TRACTOR

Mrs. Simon Henke Was Seated on Her Front Porch at O'Fallon.

The wife of St. Charles County Treasurer Simon Henke was killed instantly by a runaway tractor last night as she and Henke sat in lawn chairs on the front porch of their home at O'Fallon, 25 miles northwest of St. Louis.

Leaving the roadway and lunging across 20 feet of lawn after throwing its driver, the heavy farm machine plowed Mrs. Henke, 53 years old, against the wall and then drove its full length into the frame house.

The tractor was driven by Roy E. Hillman, 19, who lives on a farm west of O'Fallon. Hillman told Sheriff Lester Plackmeyer he reached down to check the generator. The front wheels slipped into a ditch and the tractor struck a culvert, throwing him off.

Brained, Hillman chased the lumbering vehicle as it cut across the grass and onto the 8-inch concrete porch on which the Henkes were sitting. He had delivered a baler to a garage for repairs and was seeking the garage-owner when the accident happened.

Henke tried to pull his wife to a position of safety, but the tractor was on them so quickly there was nothing he could do, he told the sheriff. Henke escaped injury. An inquest was scheduled for tonight.

It was the second tragedy in a year for the Henke family. Miss Gladys Henke, 21, daughter of the county official, was killed last November in an automobile accident near Silex, Mo.

MCARTHY PLANS REST, POTTER MAY TAKE OVER FOR HIM

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin), may hand the investigative ball to Senator Charles E. Potter (Rep., Michigan), after the McCarthy-Army hearings end and take a brief cooling-off period in his hunt for Communists in Government.

When the hearings end, the Wisconsin Senator will be technically to resume his controversial investigations, which he frequently has complained are being held up by the inquiry. McCarthy told a reporter yesterday, however, that he wants a week to rest before he makes any new move. He said Potter is ready to go at an early date on what will be the next public inquiry by the Senate investigations subcommittee.

Potter said preliminary interviewing of witnesses has been completed for a formal investigation of what has happened to Americans who still are held behind the Iron Curtain.

This would include American prisoners of war and civilians not freed by the Communists in Korea and Red China, as well as Americans held in Russia and in satellite countries after World War II.

AMERIGO VESPUCCI BIRTHDAY OBSERVED—500TH OR 503RD

FLORENCE, Italy, June 14 (AP)—Home town people yesterday celebrated the 500th birthday—or maybe it's the 503rd—of the man who gave America his name—Amerigo Vespucci.

Vespucci was born in Florence in either 1451 or 1454. Some history books say the former, but the city of Florence insists it has old baptism records to show the birthday was June 13, 1454.

Vespucci started as a commercial clerk, went to Spain and became chief pilot of the Spanish fleet. In 1497 he set out on an expedition to the west. He sailed along the coast of South America, and the Western Hemisphere inherited his name.

DONALD R. WARD WINS TWO SCHOLARSHIPS TO PRINCETON

Donald Ricketts Ward, son of Mrs. Alverda Manock, 1684 Kasper street, has won two scholarships to Princeton (N.J.) University. It was announced today at Phillips Exeter (N.H.) Academy, where he is a member of the graduating class. The awards will pay virtually all of his expenses.

As a scholarship-holding student at St. Louis Country Day School, he won a $1500 scholarship a year ago to Exeter Academy, where he earned high honors and played on football, baseball and basketball teams. He is 17 years old. When in the seventh grade at Eugene Field School, he won a Country Day School scholarship in competitive tests.

His latest awards are the John Parker Compton scholarship and the St. Louis-San Francisco Clark Hungerford Railway Scholarship in Engineering, the latter supplying $1250 annually for four years. Dr. Ward's satisfactory academic standing is maintained.

Extension City Plan Trip. MOBERLY, Mo., June 8.—Members of Randolph county's 35 extension clubs will make their annual field trip June 15 to Kansas City. Mrs. Ruth Bos, home demonstration agent, has announced. The group will leave Moberly in chartered buses at 9:30 a.m. June 15.

PRO-INDIANS SEIZE CONTROL OF TINY FRENCH ENCLAVE

MADRAS, India, June 14 (AP)—France, fighting to hold its place in Indochina, was reported today to be losing its grip on one of its tiny footholds in India.

Press reports from the small French colony of Yanaon, on India's west coast, said about 200 pro-Indian demonstrators in the town of 5800 persons had seized all public offices, hoisted the Indian flag and proclaimed French control at an end. The report said a six-man administration council was nominated and four ministers named.

Indian Prime Minister Nehru has been demanding determinedly that France withdraw from Yanaon and three small colonies on the Indian coast, Pondichery, Karikal and Mahe. Indian-French talks on the subject broke up earlier this month without agreement.

MENTAL TREATMENT FOR AGED DISCUSSED

Dr. Wilma Donahue Says Placing Them in Hospitals Is Not Always Best.

The demand for mental hospital beds for the aged can be expected to increase substantially in the future, Dr. Wilma Donahue, lecturer in psychology at the University of Michigan, said today.

Dr. Donahue, who also is chairman of the division of gerontology of the Institute for Human Adjustment, spoke at the opening session of a six-day meeting on problems of aging at St. Louis University's Walsh Hall, 3624 West Pine boulevard. SHE told her audience that the bad practice of "dumping the slightly confused, difficult or homeless" aged into the mental hospital is not the answer. These social commitments, she declared, represent a tremendous drain on hospital facilities. "One of the responsibilities communities have is to provide facilities for the supervision and care of elderly people who do not require psychiatric treatment and do not have other financial and social resources," Dr. Donahue stated.

"The foremost areas of mental disorders affecting individuals 60 years or older are the senile or arteriosclerotic psychoses. Other psychotic states commonly found include involuntional psychosis and psychotic depression." She stressed the need for older people suffering mental illnesses to be helped "long before they reach the mental hospital stage."

"It has been found," she said, "that many individuals who are mentally ill can often be better treated and cared for through some kind of extra-hospital program." The institute is under the direction of Dr. Clement S. Milhanovich, director of the St. Louis University department of sociology, and Anthony A. Salamone, director of the Adult Education Center. It is sponsored by the departments of sociology and psychology, School of Social Service and Adult Education Center.

EISENHOWER PLEDGES AID TO CAPTIVE BALTIC STATES

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—President Eisenhower said yesterday the United States will continue its efforts to help Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania regain independence.

The statement was made in a telegram to the Baltic States Freedom Committee, which was read to about 750 persons attending a meeting marking the fourteenth anniversary of the march of Soviet troops into the three small Baltic states, now a part of the Soviet Union.

Mr. Eisenhower's message said: "We are resolved to continue to do all we can to establish in the world conditions under which these countries will regain and retain their freedom."

hostile planes was sighted over central Wisconsin headed south. "Many people leaving city. Downtown streets choked with traffic. Hundreds getting out in automobiles. Thousands more fleeing on foot. CANADA IS GIVING 164 SABRE JETS TO GREECE, TURKEY
The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Radio.
OTTAWA, June 14—Canada is giving 164 Sabre jet fighters to Greece and Turkey to strengthen the aerial defenses of those NATO countries, it was learned last night.
The Canadian-made F86's are the first installment of about 300, valued at $120,000,000, which Canada is donating to the smaller NATO partners under the Canadian mutual aid program.
The planes, similar to those flown by the United States Air Force in the Korean War, were originally used to equip the 13 squadrons of Canada's first air division, which is stationed in France and Germany as Canada's contribution to NATO air strength in Europe.
RCAF pilots will deliver the jets after reconditioning at the RCAF material base at Langage, England. The gift to Greece and Turkey also includes an extra engine for each aircraft plus maintenance parts, and 197 spare engines.

Each such service, that is, the police department, fire department, medical service, transportation service and others, will maintain its own control center, and will send a liaison representative to the primary control center in Forest Park.
Messages Move Quickly.
Messages carrying out disaster plans began moving within minutes after the make-believe explosion. They were transmitted by radio, telephone, walkie-talkie and messengers.
As messages arrived, they were referred to appropriate civil defense services as indicated or to the state civil defense agency in those instances when it appeared the local civil defense force could not cope with the assumed situation without aid.
A large volume of the communications moved back and forth between the city's control center and the control centers on the East Side.
In East St. Louis, the control center was in operation at 1800 North Fortieth street, where the civil defense staff co-ordinated efforts not only with St. Louis but also with the Illinois state civil defense headquarters.
Using short-wave radio, the East St. Louis center was in constant contact with the Tri-Cities and Collinsville.
Serious Problem Aries.
One serious problem arose when it became known that St. Mary's and Christian Welfare hospitals had been destroyed, which made it necessary for the East St. Louis officials to move the injured into the hands of the Illinois authorities.
St. Louis county, operating principally in a mutual aid role since it was not in the area of destruction, sent all available support to the city, including ambulances, auxiliary police, firemen and fire-fighting equipment.
One of the county's gravest tasks came as it was faced with caring for thousands of the city's injured, who were temporarily placed in churches and county schools.
The St. Louis police department, carrying out pre-arranged plans, determined the extent of devastation and placed in operation the appropriate traffic control plan. The department maintained its own control center at Second District Station and also operated a mobile field headquarters in Forest Park.
Sector headquarters also were set up by the police department in the southeast, northeast, southwest and northwest sections. The department was partly mobilized for the exercise and controlled movement on some portions of the civil defense aid-ways.
The fire department dispersed equipment to three assembly areas and then simulated fire-fighting activities.
Several teams of trainees from Beaumont and Cleveland High Schools, plus some volunteer women trainees, were assembled by the medical service as "casualties." These casualties were given first aid and processed from pick-up areas to clearing stations and then to base hospitals, St. Luke's, St. Anthony and DePaul.
The emergency relief service of the Red Cross set up its control center at the chapter office, 3414 Lindell boulevard. A refugee shelter was established there, and problems were worked out by the volunteer canteen service, and the food, shelter and clothing committees.
The welfare service of the Social Planning Council set up an information center at the Red Cross chapter office and sent teams to clearing stations and base hospitals to register casualties and refugees.
Extent and degree of hypothetical radioactivity was determined by the radiological service, mainly by actual aerial reconnaissance. The transportation service used busses furnished by the Public Service Co. to simulate ambulances for movement of teams and casualties from pick-up areas through clearing stations to base hospitals.
Amateur Radio Operators.
Amateur radio operators were in Civil Air Patrol and Auxiliary Coast Guard Squadron planes to radio reports for plotting radiation levels on the operations board at the primary Control Center.
The plant protection service carried out air-raid drills in 10 plants. Other civil defense services, including rescue, health, mortuary, streets and sewers, utilities, engineering, and supply simulated disaster activities in their respective control centers.
Federal agencies in St. Louis will operate control centers for the full 24-hour period of the exercise and will furnish aid to the civil defense agency. Military organizations also are alerted to furnish aid to the civil defense forces of the area, but no actual movement of troops is anticipated.
Explorers scouted of Post 22, Maplewood, served as messengers at the control center.

THIEVES STOP EXHAUST FAN, GO THROUGH BLADES INTO BAR
Burglars cut the wires of a large exhaust fan, then climbed between the blades to gain entrance to the Garrick Bar, 523 Chestnut street, early yesterday, police reported. Inside they forced open a cash drawer and cash register, and fled with $229.
A hole was chopped in the roof of the Brandon Pharmacy, 5300 Union boulevard, by burglars who gained entrance by dropping through the hole early yesterday. Using a sledge hammer and crowbar, the burglars forced open a safe and took $385 and $27 in postage stamps.
Burglars driving a truck hauled away a safe containing $354 after breaking through a back door to get into the Marke Produce Co., 416 Franklin avenue, yesterday. A policeman discovered the burglary.

M'CARTHY SAYS SOME U.S. AID HELPS REDS

He Assails 'Blood Trade' Between Communists and Allies Getting Dollars.

SIoux FALLS, S. D., June 14 (AP)—Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, told 1700 Legionnaires yesterday that American dollars "are directly fashioning bullets which may well cause the death of some of the young men in this audience."

Speaking off-the-cuff to the South Dakota State American Legion convention, McCarthy

renewed his attack on what he called the "indecent blood trade between American allies and the enemy."

He did not mention the name of Harold E. Stassen, head of the Foreign Operations Administration and a target of McCarthy criticisms in recent weeks.

But in obvious reference to Stassen, McCarthy said "the head of the foreign aid division came home recently and said we have won a great victory."

The American people were told, McCarthy said, that "we were going to continue to give United States dollars to allies, and in return allow the allies to ship industrial goods to our enemy."

"In other words, they are going to take your dollars, and ship the sinews of strength to the enemy."

McCarthy asked rhetorically "what can you people do about it?" and answered: "You can ask every candidate running this fall—whether Republican or Democrat—if he's going to Washington and work to stop this blood trade."

McCarthy said this country should cut off every cent of foreign aid to allies who continue shipping industrial material to Red nations.

McCarthy told reporters that the inquiry in Washington should have a name other than the "McCarthy-Army hearings."

"I'm on the Army's side as much as anyone," he said. "Let's call them the Army-Clark Clifford-Symington hearings."

He referred to Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, a subcommittee member, and Clifford, former legal counsel to former President Truman. McCarthy has contended that Symington and Clifford, persuaded Stevens to file the formal charges which led to the hearings.

But over-heated homes, over-exposure to drying sun and wind and improper drying, waving, dyeing and shampooing practices dry, dehydrate, damage hair. Ordinary products, even water, cannot replace moisture... cannot replace the natural oils. But Charles Antell Formula 9, made with super-refined Anhydrous Lanolin not only contains substances beneficial to hair and scalp but absorbs up to 80% of its own weight in moisture! Thus, by penetrating hair and scalp, Formula 9 helps restore lost oil-and-moisture balance! Formula 9 not only rejuvenates your hair's springiness, texture and sheen overnight but makes it manageable immediately.

ANTI-WEST PROTESTS BY CROWDS IN JORDAN

They Shout 'Down With American Zionists, Britain, Corrupt Government.'

AMMAN, June 14 (AP)—Street crowds demonstrated in Amman yesterday against the United States, Britain and the Jordan government.

The demonstrations broke out shortly after the arrival of Saudi Arabia's King Saud, who came here by plane for military talks with King Hussein and other Jordan leaders.

The crowds shouted: "Down with Zionist America, down with Britain, down with colonialization and down with corrupt government."

The demonstrators denounced Premier Tewfik Pasha Abul

Huda and his cabinet as well as the British advisers of Jordan's Arab Legion.

Earlier yesterday a crowd gathered outside the premier's office while inside an official of the Moslem brotherhood complained that the agricultural and finance ministers, along with the United States Point IV director for Jordan, had attended a party at a school near Amman at which alcoholic drinks were served.

The brotherhood pointed out that such drinks were against the Moslem religion. The premier said he would investigate the charges.

Appraisal of Army-McCarthy Row Indicates All Principals, Both Parties, Nation Are HurtDemocratic Government Suffering When U.S. Needs Unity to Meet Communist Threat — Public Reaction Is One of Revulsion.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

A NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENT who gets out of Washington a few days quickly realizes how right the President is in his anxiety over what he calls "highly publicized distractions." For every question asked about Mr. Eisenhower's legislative program or Indochina or non-segregation in the schools, or anything else, there are 10 about the Army-McCarthy hearings. Who is being hurt? Who is being helped? What will be the outcome? These are the insistent questions, 10 to 1, in the drawing room, on the campus, in the taxicab.

The broad answers are, by now, becoming clear, and none is pleasant to contemplate. Everybody is being hurt.

Nobody is being really helped. The outcome can hardly fail to be inconclusive.

The country is being hurt; the Government is being hurt; America's reputation around the world is being undermined; the precious fabric of a decent society is being rent.

Fortunately the instinctive public reaction, which I have encountered in many places, is one of revolt and revulsion. The conduct, on both sides, which brought on the Army-McCarthy investigation and much of the conduct which has marked the hearings has turned the stomachs of millions of readers and viewers. That's good; that is a gain, however painful.

Essential Consequences.

A full appraisal of the investigation must await the remaining testimony and the committee report—or reports. But the essential consequences are visible:

The morale of the Army—top to bottom—and the attitude of the public toward the Army is impaired. It has exhibited weakness and vacillation at the top and an intimidated favoritism at the bottom. It will take a long time to repair these offenses. The integrity of the personnel of the whole Government is damaged. A "young Army intelligence officer" has violated his oath by copying, in part, and fabricating, in part, a secret FBI report and slipping it to Senator McCarthy who, in turn, asks 2,000,000 other federal employees to do the same thing.

Secretary of the Army Robert Stevens is hurt. He is patronized, badgered and belittled; but the main damage he has brought upon himself by so long letting his weather-vaned decisions as the highest civilian officer of an independent department of the executive branch be influenced, even subverted, by a Senator and his staff.

Senator McCarthy is hurt. Few correspondents who have followed these hearings believe that he will ever recover the political influence and the power to intimidate he has exercised so long. The television coverage of the hearings, so objective but so revealing, has so fully exposed the McCarthy techniques — of innuendo, half-truth, of meeting one charge by bringing up another, however irrelevant (like the case of the assistant Mr. Welch didn't employ)—that it is doubtful if

McCarthy Is in Strategic Spot
To Kill Inquiry on His FinancesHe Can Investigate Revenue Department,

WASHINGTON.

COMMISSIONER OF INTERNAL REVENUE T. COLEMAN ANDREWS has now admitted publicly that Senator McCarthy's income taxes are under investigation and has indicated that the checkup will be terminated in the near future.

For obvious reasons, he has not said anything about some other aspects of the investigation.

The Treasury agent in charge of the McCarthy inquiry is Francis J. Boyle, who is not one of the veteran agents. He is a man of moderate experience and pleasant disposition. Several times Boyle has had to consult with more experienced colleagues about aspects of the McCarthy case.

Reports from inside Internal Revenue indicate that Boyle has now concluded that he can make no tax case against McCarthy, and an official recommendation to that effect is expected soon.

McCarthy is in a strategic spot. It just happens that McCarthy is in a far better strategic position than the average taxpayer whose taxes come under the eye of the tax agent. For instance, the minute it became known that Internal Revenue was going into McCarthy's finances, rumor got about that McCarthy in turn was investigating Internal Revenue.

Unquestionably he has the double power to do it. His first power comes from the potent Government Operations Committee of which he is chairman. His second power comes from the fact that he is chairman of a subcommittee on Treasury Appropriations. In this position he can drastically curtail Treasury funds, increase or decrease the salary of Treasury Agent Boyle, or Commissioner T. Cole-

U.N. Gets 5-Year Plan to Make South Korea Self-Supporting

488-Page Report Critical of Rhee Administration, Is Based on Assumption Fighting Will Not Be Renewed.

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., June 14 (AP).

THE United Nations last night published a new five-year plan to make South Korea self-supporting by 1958 at a cost of $1,930,000,000, including $1,240,000,000 in United States and U.N. aid.

The plan was given in a 488-page report critical, in part, of President Syngman Rhee's administration. It was laid out for the fiscal years between April 1, 1953, and March 31, 1958. It called for a 1958-59 gross national output 42 per cent above 1949-50, in the time of the Communist invasion, and 81 per cent above 1952-53.

The report came from the Robert R. Nathan Associates, Inc., Washington consulting economists whose president was a long-time New Deal brain trust. It was prepared for the U.N. Korean Reconstruction Agency (UNKRA), which paid the firm $125,000 for a year's economic survey. It was offered as the groundwork for joint U.N.-Korean government planning.

UNKRA made it public here. In Geneva, and in Seoul where it has headquarters. The agent general, American Lt. Gen. John B. Coulter (retired), said this did not necessarily mean UNKRA accepted all the recommendations, though he termed the statistical data useful.

The report assumed that the 1950-53 Korean war would not be renewed and the Republic of Korea would aim at a "normal" military force of 200,000 such as it could support itself.

(President Rhee told South Korean farmers yesterday, "we must be ready to die in the northward march to unify our country.") Senator Knowland (Rep., California), said in the Senate April 14 South Korea had 600,000 troops. Other sources have estimated the combat force at 640,000 plus service troops. The United States helps support them.)

The Nathan report, without mentioning Rhee personally, recommended "sweeping changes and improvements" in government policies, particularly in "the efficiency and integrity of Korean public administration."

Underpaid Officials.

It said officials' salaries were too low and that "indirect supplementation of income... has virtually been institutionalized in Korean government circles."

It declared that the government tolerated inflation and black markets, largely dominated by labor organization and was inefficient in running the bulk of Korean industry.

The report criticized South Korea's own $2,170,000,000 five-year plan on the ground that it would devote over half the spending to social welfare, as against a quarter in the Nathan plan. It said the government plan "would postpone far into the future the attainment of self-support."

Self-support is attainable, the report held, on a living standard low by western criteria but higher than in most Far Eastern countries. It paid tribute to "the courage, vigor and determination" of the Koreans.

It foresaw that South Korea's population would rise from 22-

Friendship Bid
By Soviet Stirs
West GermanyMinorities React to Economic and Cultural Approach by Moscow.

BONN, June 14 (AP).

A SOVIET friendship bid posed new problems today for West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his pro-Western policy.

The Soviet Communist party organ, Moscow's Pravda, in a story published yesterday, said Soviet Premier Malenkov had told East German Premier Grotewohl the Kremlin would "treat favorably" any West German approach for establishment of "economic and cultural" relations between Bonn and Moscow.

Malenkov's statement was aimed particularly at the Free Democratic party, second strongest in Adenauer's coalition government. The Free Democrats have been urging resumption of diplomatic relations with Moscow as a step toward German reunification.

Opposition Party Impressed.

Adenauer's chief opposition, the Social Democratic party, in a statement yesterday viewed Malenkov's expression as "confirmation of the 'new look' in Soviet policy" and said the party would "welcome normal relations with the Soviet Union."

As quoted by Pravda, Malenkov told Grotewohl new ties between West Germany and the Soviets "could not fail to accelerate the settlement of the German problem and strengthen peace in Europe."

Adenauer's government made no immediate comment on the Russian's statement but some officials pointed out that there are no legal obstacles to cultural and economic ties with the Communists.

Pravda quoted Grotewohl as telling Malenkov there was growing in West Germany "a patriotic movement which has as its aim the liquidation of treaties connected with the establishment of the European Defense Community." Malenkov's statement obviously was designed to appeal to such sentiment.

Responsive Note Struck.

Dr. Thomas Dehler, the Free Democrats' national chairman, said in an address that "direct diplomatic relations between West Germany and the Soviet Union are absolutely necessary."

Adm. Strauss's Personal Rule Of AEC Raises Many QuestionsSeveral Who Have Disagreed With Chairman in Past Are Now Suffering for Their Stands.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

THE Atomic Energy Commission is like a dark and guarded room, from which muffled noises are occasionally heard. The noises have been pretty disquieting lately. There is, for example, a distinct noise of what had best be called markedly personal administration.

The new commission chairman, Adm. Lewis Strauss, is a man of great ability with a habit of resenting disagreements and cherishing old grudges. Since he assumed the commission chairmanship, a significant number of those who dared to disagree with him in the past have been made to suffer for it in one way or another.

The first on the list is Carroll Wilson, who did not get on with the Admiral in the days when Wilson was the AEC's general manager and Strauss was one of the commissioners. Wilson left the commission for private employment long ago; but he retained his Q-clearance, as the security clearance for atomic matters is called. Strauss had hardly been appointed to the chairmanship of the AEC when an unusually intensive security investigation of Wilson was suddenly initiated. This might have been normal, except for one other thing. The Climas Uranium Co., of which Wilson was an officer, also received a pretty strong hint that Adm. Strauss should certainly have been consulted before such a man as Wilson was hired.

The second case is that of Malcolm Henderson, another former employee of the AEC who retained his Q-clearance after leaving the commission. As one of the designers of the long-range detection system that warns of Soviet atom tests, Henderson is a man of some eminence. But he too had ventured to disagree with Strauss in the past, and he paid a double price.

First Henderson was offered, and he accepted, the post of scientific adviser to the secretary of the National Security Council, Gen. Robert Cutler. Strauss heard about it, and the offer was immediately withdrawn. Then he took a position at the Civil Defense Administration, only to be notified that his Q-clearance had now been suspended by the AEC.

The excuse given to Henderson was that he had no further need of Q-clearance, and that the suspension was routine. When he made inquiries among old friends at the AEC, however, he obtained indisputable proof that Adm. Strauss had directly and actively intervened.

Nothing came of Wilson's security investigation. Henderson has gone on to other work. The formal proceeding against Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer was set on foot at the beginning of November, by one of the usual informer's letters purporting to give new derogatory data. Because of the alleged new data, the FBI sent Oppenheimer's file to the AEC at the end of the month.

The other commissioners had no other warning of what was afoot. The majority were wholly unimpressed by the new data in the file. They remembered how often Oppenheimer had already been investigated and cleared. They expected nothing cleared. But Adm. Strauss went privately to the President, without consulting his colleagues. He persuaded Eisenhower to give the famous "blank wall" order.

More generally, all these incidents raise certain questions. Adm. Strauss's capacities are beyond doubt. The country owes him a debt for his role in the hydrogen bomb debate, and an even bigger debt for forcing the adoption of the long-range detection system.

But can the Admiral's highly personal methods be healthily combined with the protective secrecy of the AEC? Is he well qualified to sit as chief judge of appeal in the Oppenheimer case, when he was the man who secured the indictment and when he is known to cherish a strong enmity towards Dr. Oppenheimer? And since the ruling that a man can be a security risk who is admittedly completely loyal and impeccably discreet, will everyone be a security risk who dares to argue with Adm. Strauss?

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Dust Storm in Indochina

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: Warmongers in and out of the Eisenhower Administration are clamoring for the United States to enter the mess in Indochina, and in exploitation offer the arrant nonsense that we must get into this conflict to save the Far East from embracing Communism.

Communism, as everyone knows, is promoted, not banished, by war. Misery is Communism's most potent ally, and we multiply misery every time armies are sent into battle.

For 40 years this truth has been abundantly demonstrated, not only to the United States but to the world. No nation can point to a single element of good arising from any one of the last three conflicts, which embraced more than a decade of slaughter, no tragic and brutal that thoughtful people everywhere became ashamed of civilization.

Two years ago Mr. Eisenhower was proclaiming from the housepots that if elected he would get out of war and stay out. Marquis Childs, writing in the Post-Dispatch, says the President is ready to ask Congress for permission to intervene in Indochina with sea and air power, thus repudiating the solemn pledge he made when asking for office.

As in previous preludes to war, Mr. Eisenhower offers a fictitious outline of his program. Press reports intimate that only the Air Force and Navy are to become involved. This, of course, is but a subterfuge. History makes it crystal clear that where one branch of the military goes, marching men follow in short order, and the fate of one is the common fate of all.

Are thousands of young men—the flower of our citizenship—to be placed in jeopardy in a jungle war to perpetuate French colonial misrule, and without the knowledge, much less the consent, of the American people? The United States would reap only another wave of hate and intolerance of dust-storm proportions.

JAMES P. WHITESIDE

Loyal, at Least

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: At one time I was disturbed that my performance in academic work toward a graduate degree in physics was not equal to that of some of the top scientists. But I am encouraged now that the Government is doing me quite a service in "clearing" the way to the top. I may be stupid, but boy, am I loyal.

JAMES F. HAWK

Better Late Than Never

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: I am at a loss to understand this wave of public indignation against Our Only Loyal American for his charges against Attorney Frederick G. Fisher. Fisher wasn't even present; he had his senior partner, a gentleman of prestige and dignity, Joseph N. Welch, to defend him.

Where were all these vociferous champions of decency and justice when Gen. Zwicker was being given the treatment? Or Gen. Reber? Or Secretary Stevens? Better late than never, perhaps.

What of the scores of decent citizens who were denied even the right of counsel ordered to answer "yes" or "no," brilliant men, but men who hadn't the experience nor the articulateness of a Bishop Oxnham, a Donald Reed or Pusey.

They are the victims of a particularly savage bully; they're the forgotten men of this three-year period of fear.

M. B. HART

What Happened?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: What ever happened to the "Joe Must Go" movement in Wisconsin which you were so gleeful about some time ago? JOHN TIVNAN.

Cats on North Broadway

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: About three weeks ago a family moved from a house in the 8500 block of North Broadway abandoning seven cats. These cats have tried to subsist on the scraps left in the alley and what is thrown to them by kind neighbors.

But rations have been very skimpy and they are getting thin and emaciated. Seeing these animals in the alley morning and evening on my way to and from the office, it seemed something should be done.

I called the Humane Society yesterday and told of the plight of these seven cats. For my trouble was told they do not pick up stray cats unless they are "boxed." They do not take the trouble to round up stray cats. But if the neighbors wanted to rent one of the traps from the Humane Society and would take the trouble to trap the cats, then the Society would consider calling for them.

It would be difficult for someone who does not know how to handle such strays to catch them, and with the personnel of the Humane Society supposedly trained in this type of work, it would seem quite a simple matter for them to round up these cats, which are quite pretty in their markings, and either find a good home for them or put them out of their misery.

Let's hope the Humane Society lives up to its name, and does something for these cats now that summer is coming and they will need proper drinking water and care.

A PET LOVER.

Plenty Strange

Has the party situation in Congress ever been more thoroughly confused than it is now? We wonder. One swallow does not make a summer and the issue of foreign trade extension is not everything but it does happen to be a vital part of the Eisenhower program.

The House has just passed Representative Daniel A. Reed's bill for a minimum one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. The Senate has not acted with the result that for the second time in two years, Congress has failed to meet the deadline and the law will need to be extended—if extended it is—retroactively.

Mr. Eisenhower originally asked for a three-year extension and the adoption of other proposals in the Randall Commission's report. But, facing powerful resistance from Congressman Reed of New York and other Republicans, the President soon abandoned this program and announced he would accept another one-year extension.

Now, as leading Republicans force abandonment of the Eisenhower trade program, Democratic Senator Gore of Tennessee announces that he is preparing a bill to carry out the President's original plan for an expanded foreign trade program. Mr. Gore says he will introduce a bill for a three-year extension and then seek to force a vote on the floor so the recommendations submitted by the President will come to a test.

Concurrently The New York Times reports that the White House is balking at congressional requests for a "standstill" commitment against any new trade negotiations for a year. The Eisenhower Administration reluctantly made such a pledge last year and should it agree to another this would mean that the reciprocal trade program would stand frozen for two years. Thus the President's own party would have forced him to retreat from a basic position in behalf of his own program.

And yet Mr. Eisenhower is now committed to come out to Illinois later this summer to appear at the Illinois State Fair. Why? To make an appearance in behalf of senatorial nominee Joseph T. Meek—and in opposition to Senator Douglas. Mr. Meek has already placed himself in the G.O.P. bitter-end camp opposed to the President on this and other highly important issues, and Senator Douglas supports President Eisenhower's position on reciprocal trade.

A Need That Might Be Anyone's

Two thousand persons in Greater St. Louis are afflicted with cerebral palsy, a disorder caused by damage to the brain, particularly to those portions which control the motor activities of the body. There may be as many as 3000 more whose condition has not been identified because of widespread lack of knowledge of the subject. Their numbers are being increased by more than 125 annually. Yet facilities here are capable of properly caring for fewer than 300.

Seventy-five thousand dollars is being sought by the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Greater St. Louis. The money will be used to enable physical and occupational therapists, speech teachers, nursery school teachers, and other specialists to help adult and child victims of cerebral palsy cope with the impairments to their walk, sense of balance, speech, and sometimes their sight, hearing and reasoning ability.

Anyone might incur this affliction, which can be caused by physical injury or prolonged fever as well as by faulty pre-natal development of the brain cells. More than half the victims can be taught adequate adjustment, but the affliction is more costly than all other chronic disabilities, the association reports. These facts speak for themselves, and will surely draw responses of the kind the association hopes for.

The Unknown Young Officer

The ethical question raised by the McCarthy hearings with reference to the prohibited disclosure of secret information is one that cannot be disposed of by a mere citation of a clear presidential directive. The dilemma of an army officer, or any government official, who must make a choice between a sworn duty to establish authority and what he regards as a higher duty to his country, is not properly resolved by applying a rule of thumb.

It may be doubted of course that the young officer, who Senator McCarthy said gave him confidential information, was responding to the acute sense of honor attributed to him by the Senator from Wisconsin. Yet he may have been and it is because of that possibility that the various courses of action that were open to him should be considered.

As represented by Senator McCarthy this officer saw an FBI report and concluded therefrom that a dangerous situation existed at Fort Monmouth and that the Army authorities were not taking appropriate action. Fearing the consequences of such negligence he thereupon violated his oath and passed the information to Senator McCarthy.

Why did he not consider the possible uses that Senator McCarthy would make of this classified information? The record would hardly support the belief that the Senator would treat any evidence submitted to him with a just and impartial mind. And why did the officer fail to take his case to his superiors, going straight through to President Eisenhower if it were necessary?

It also appears likely that the officer was not deterred by any consideration of the example he was setting. If the practice of giving secret information to unauthorized persons became general it would be a standing enticement to backbiters, malcontents and character assassins, since they would undergo no risk of detection. Nor could the theft and sale of information, not to mention the forging of documents, be excluded.

Senator McCarthy's reply to all this is that his officer could not have proceeded through channels without subjecting himself to reprisals. Possibly so. But Senator McCarthy has described his informant as a man whose consuming motive was love of country. It is curious that such a patriot wouldn't risk a loss of rank when, in his view, the nation's safety was being threatened. It is also significant that he has retained his place in a department that he apparently thought was inert or corrupt, or both.

In the circumstances it is hard to believe that this officer, or any member of McCarthy's underground apparatus for that matter, is the paragon of virtue that the Wisconsin Senator would have us believe. In any case he remains an anonymous character with all the liabilities of such a status. Yet the Senator from Wisconsin is standing on the principle that his secret informant should be given complete freedom to subvert legal procedures and to breach the discipline of an organization that would fly to pieces without discipline.

The right of appeal to the conscience of mankind, even above the claims of law and orderly process, cannot be denied. Indispensable conditions of such an appeal, however, must be that it rests on a convincing moral basis and that every legal recourse has been exhausted. Evidence of the first condition has not been offered in this case. Good faith is not established. And not the slightest attempt has been made, so far as the record goes, to comply with the second.

Secretary Talbott Sees It Himself

Air Force Secretary Talbott clearly regards the selection of the authorized $126,000,000 Air Force Academy as one of his most important current responsibilities. This was shown when he joined the inspection team Sunday afternoon for a first-hand look at the Chautauqua site, between Elsie and Grafton. Like the inspection group, he had come by way of Lake Geneva, Wis., one of the two other proposed possible sites. The third of the three nominated sites is near Colorado Springs, Colo.

It would be strange indeed if there were not some opposition in an area as large as 19,000 acres to acquisition of the land for any federal or state purpose and some dissent of this kind has arisen in the nearby Illinois section. Fortunately this is mild in comparison to the protests raised at Lake Geneva, a fact which doubtless reflects a realization as to the great advantage of having the Air Force counterpart of West Point or Annapolis in the area.

Obviously it is impossible for the Federal Government to acquire a site for this vital aspect of the national defense training program without disturbing someone. The wonder is the availability of so much land of a character suitable for long runways on the scenic Piasa bluffs of the Mississippi, with water supply, recreational and cultural opportunities, and favorable weather conditions. Almost any other similar area of suitable land, near a large city, would be much more heavily encumbered with man-made installations. Chautauqua is the largest community in the area and it is a summer colony more favored in the past than today, as Peter Wyden's nostalgic Sunday story explained.

We said Sunday the selection should be on merit alone. That is the only basis on which a choice so important can properly be made. To this end, we join with all those who are making sure that the pertinent information is in the hands of the inspectors and Secretary Talbott.

The Button Is the Best

Tinted glasses and tinted windshields are not the answer to the glare of approaching headlights in night-driving. That is the conclusion of the Vision Research Laboratory of the University of Michigan after more than 100,000 observations of the eye's ability to see. Dr. H. Richard Blackwell, director of the laboratory, says the tests prove that tinting, while it reduces glare, also reduces the ability to see.

Glare is the No. 1 malmer and killer in night-driving on the highways, the principal reason why night-driving is so much more dangerous than day-driving. It would indeed be handy to have a mechanical device, tinting or anything else, which would make up for some drivers' discourtesy—and recklessness—in failing to dim their lights. Meanwhile, the happiest alternative is to press a foot on the dimmer button, not only for the sake of the safety of the other driver, but also for one's own protection.

Experiment in Paris

Pierre Mendes-France has agreed to try to form a new French Government, a task which he attempted a year ago without any success.

Last summer Mendes-France, an individualistic member of the conservative Radical Socialist party, urged France to sweep out old faces, create a really new government, raise income taxes to balance the budget and attempt to negotiate the Indochina war.

None of these ideas was popular with the old political leaders. Mendes-France's suggestions immediately arrayed a solid phalanx of former premiers against him. And there is no indication that these same ideas are much more popular now than they were before.

In fact, Paris believes that President Rene Coty offered the premiership to Mendes-France only to prove that radical changes in government and direct peace negotiations with the Indochinese Communists have no chance of winning parliamentary support.

This is the traditional system by which France reconsiders policy by considering men. It has generally resulted, after hasty searches for new cabinets, in compromise policy under middle-road men.

If this is again the result, it means little change in French policy toward Indochina, despite the increasing popular desire to pull out. It means a continued colonial war and a continued hope of enough American intervention to win it. This has been French policy for years and it has failed both on the field of battle and in the minds and hearts of Asians.

There Lies the Power

St. Louis county's phenomenal growth has generated many complex problems, but this is only the beginning. As Dickson Terry reported recently in our Everyday Magazine, the county's population already has outstripped Kansas City's and, in perhaps another 15 or 20 years, it may pass that of St. Louis.

How is local government in the county going to keep pace with this rapid and frenzied growth, much less catch up with the expansion that has taken place since the end of World War II? Some have talked in terms of a borough system linking the county's 94 incorporated municipalities into a single governmental form. But is this extra layer of government necessary?

Under terms of the County Charter a great deal can be done to improve and standardize the services of local government west of Skinker. The county can, for example, contract with any municipality for the operation of a common service. The County Health Commissioner is now performing health services under contract with some smaller communities. Likewise building, plumbing and electrical inspections also are handled by the county for some municipalities.

But the surface has only been scratched. There is room for a great deal more of this sort of functional unity, and Supervisor Matthews and the County Council ought to take the lead in promoting it. The county might well be able to offer better and more economical police, fire, health and other services than many of the smaller municipalities acting on their own.

Certain services, of course, can be handled only on a metropolitan basis, that is, by including the City of St. Louis. One such is the elimination of sewage and storm water. The Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District has been assigned that task. Related area-wide services—water, for example—could be handled in the same way merely by amending the Sewer District's charter.

"WHAT ARE THOSE BASES IN THE HEARTS OF MEN JUSTICE DOUGLAS MENTIONED?"

How Baltimore Ended Segregation

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Largest city below Mason-Dixon line ended school segregation almost at once after Supreme Court ruling; editorial says School Board did quickly and unanimously what it would have had to do in time; believes city's schools can set example for South.

From The Baltimore Evening Sun

In voting unanimously to have Baltimore public schools "conform to a non-segregated basis" by next September, the School Board has taken the sensible course of saying, in effect, that there is nothing to be gained by putting off a move made inevitable by the Supreme Court's nonsegregation ruling.

With lawsuits currently outstanding against it by Negroes seeking admittance to the Mergenthaler printing course and the all-girls Western High School curriculum, with other lawsuits likely with the ruling by City Solicitor Biddison that Baltimore's school segregation law is "unconstitutional," and with a Supreme Court decree on the way, the School Board has, in reality, only accepted at this time what it clearly would have been forced to accept in short order.

Now it is in a position to start planning at once for a desegregated school system. And if this means, say, that the School Board can cancel plans to install costly printing equipment in Carver vocational school to duplicate the printing equipment installed for white students at Mergenthaler, then the School Board's decision may result in some economies.

The local decision is both historic and momentous. The long-range effect on community relations in this, the largest city below the Mason-Dixon line, is obvious. But it is a change toward which Baltimore has been moving for some time, and there is no reason why, with a due exercise of responsibility and calm rationality, the city cannot set an example that will help to dissolve the fears and tension that have appeared in some Southern quarters since the Supreme Court's ruling.

It should be borne in mind as significant that the School Board, representing a considerable cross-section of local attitudes, acted unanimously and without expressions of reluctance or misgiving.

In its decision of Sept. 2, 1952, to admit Negroes to the Poly "A" course, the School Board was divided, 5 to 3. The unanimity expressed now is an indication that all the members of the board have faith that desegregation can be carried out without further delay, and at least one sustaining fact in the faith must be the ease with which the Poly decision was carried out.

Unfortunately, we believe, the School Board did not have a statement ready, at the time of its desegregation decision, which would indicate what its actual effects will be. That statement will come when the Board of Superintendents, headed by Dr. John Fischer, reports on the practicalities of putting the board's decision into effect.

As we understand it, a wholesale shifting and mixing of school populations is not likely by next fall. That is to say, pupils and teachers, generally speaking, are bound to remain in their present schools unless they are advancing from one to another or have some good reason for changing schools.

But Baltimoreans will not know until next week, under the procedure set up by the School Board, just how extensive the change will be. And until then, there is no cause for wild guesses as to what next fall will bring.

Comedy Production From Washington

Eric Sevareid in a C.B.S. News Commentary

If there is any sense of political humor left in the country, which I frequently doubt, we will probably have a new musical comedy one of these days entitled "Rise and Shine," in which a basso profundo in the wings will repeatedly sing the theme song called "Point of Order."

With or without music, a re-run of the current Washington soap opera can be a distant service to the public, provided the program prints a clear outline of the plot, and identifies the part each of the characters is playing. By five o'clock this afternoon, the folks in my neighborhood, whether they were pro or anti-McCarthy, couldn't tell, anymore, who were the good guys and who the bad guys.

There was a newcomer in our group and he gave us expert spectators quite a rough time with his questions. The conversation in front of the television set went, in parts, about like this:

"McCarthy and Stevens, they're both Republicans, aren't they?"

"Well, how come they are fighting each other, then?"

"Well, now, that Jackson and McClellan and that Symington, they're Democrats . . . how come they seem to be defending the Republican Secretary of the Army while the Republican members on the committee don't seem interested in defending him?"

All we could answer was that Washington is full of wheels within wheels, sometimes big wheels within small wheels.

"What's so funny about Pvt. Schine being out in front of a bunch of generals? Isn't that the way it usually is, in a war?"

We said it was, but in this war the men in the rear weren't exactly supporting the private in the front.

He said, "McCarthy must be reading somebody else's lines. There he is objecting to a witness being browbeaten. We replied that McCarthy does not like to see privates browbeaten, only generals, especially generals who undignify themselves by sitting next to assistant secretaries of defense."

"Look," he said, later. "There's Senator Dworshak squabbling with McCarthy about that letterhead. I thought McCarthy had picked Dworshak to represent him on the committee?" "Well," he said, "in politics when you grab for a rose you often get a thorn; besides Dworshak also represents a lot of people in Idaho where television is believed to have penetrated by now."

The newcomer said, "Is Pvt. Schine a Communist?" We said, "Of course not, what gave you that idea?" "Well," he said, "they keep talking about the Army 'coddling' him, and according to McCarthy it is Communists the Army coddles." "Well," we said, "the Army is a big melting pot, where anybody who falls into it is likely to be coddled, steamed or parboiled . . . in any case," we said, "Schine is not being coddled at the moment; Schine is being roasted . . ."

The newcomer observed that this was not very funny and went on to say, "With all those generals and secretaries tied up there, who is mind-fishing the store?" All we could say to that was that it's pretty hard for anybody to wait on the customers when a couple of small boys keep throwing bricks through the plate glass window.

LIARS CONTEST MADE EASY.

Leo Altman, in the Atlanta Constitution The judges in the annual Burlington (Wis.) Liars contest should have no trouble this year. All they need to do is wait until the end of the McArmy hearings and then pick the champion.

A Prize Winning Novel

THE GENTLE INSURRECTION, by Doris Betts. (Fiction, 274 pp., $3.50.)

For the admirers of Katherine Anne Porter and her school of delicate and perceptive writing, this collection of short stories will come as a perhaps unexpected delight. In Doris Betts' work there is little slickness, scant similarity to the big-magazine philosophy or treatment; by contrast it has understanding and a certain power, and not least a fine sense of the English language and its shades of meaning.

"The Gentle Insurrection" and its companion tales have won the first $2000 Putnam-University of North Carolina prize contest. If future winners meet the high standard set by this choice, it will be an important literary reward indeed.

One of the stories, "Mr. Shawn and Father Scott," received a $500 prize in Mademoiselle magazine's college fiction competition. There is no question that Mrs. Betts' future work will be awaited with considerable interest, and that many will watch for her longer works.

Like Miss Porter, Mrs. Betts has a Southern background in her life and in her writing as well. The small town in her literary setting, and she offers several facets of its daily doings and relationships. She tells of white emigrants and Negro servants, adults in their appraisals of children's reactions, of the aging and the young, of laborer and employer.

Her general theme in these stories, if one may be noted, is the difficulties of inarticulate human beings, of the problems of communication. A white woman calls on her employer to express regret at a domestic tragedy; children stand before the body of a dead person, and an older onlooker misinterprets their reaction. Mrs. Betts has humor, the art of compression, a phrase that may say more than the pages of less gifted writers. She is a native North Carolinian, housewife, newspaper woman and, not least, college student in creative writing. Her name is one to check for future reference.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Real Cause of Eisenhower's Peril

WASHINGTON. WHILE GEN. EISENHOWER listed several measures which he hopes Congress will pass, he devoted most of his attention to his Thursday evening address, and by far the most energy, to his farm program. This is indeed the controversial measure which has the greatest practical importance.

For if Congress turns him down and insists upon rigid support of farm prices the Government will have to buy in huge surplus crops on top of the mountainous surplus it is already compelled to hold. It costs, as the President pointed out, $30,000 an hour just to store them. The operation has a cost about $2,800,000,000 in the past year. Yet on the other hand, if Congress does not turn down the President in order to continue the rigid support, it is believed in Congress—and that is where the belief matters—that the farmers will turn against the Republican party.

The farm program presents a mean political issue. It is a case of "damned if you do and damned if you don't." Here the President is standing up straight for the right but hard policy, thanks one may assume to the fact that he has a Secretary of Agriculture with convictions and a conscience. Secretary Benson seems to be a refreshing example of a public man who is not trying each day to split the difference between yes and no.

President Gives Up.

Except for flexible price supports, there is not much that is controversial about the President's legislative program today. The main reason that the program is not very controversial is that it takes two to have a controversy, and the President has either lost or given up the fight on the other principal controversial issues.

The tax bill is not highly controversial, largely because the recession has not deepened. This has reduced the pressure for the Democratic proposal to raise the income tax exemptions and remove several million taxpayers from the rolls.

The revision of the Taft-Hartley Act has failed. In the main this is because there are so many Republicans and a very considerable number of Southern Democrats who do not want to revise the law in favor of the labor unions, and also on the opposite end a very considerable number of Northern Democrats who do not object in the least to being able to argue that the Taft-Hartley Act—that "slave law"—is still grinding the faces of the poor.

Trade Program Last.

In the appropriation bills there are still items which may become highly controversial—for example, in the field of foreign aid. There is also a major question of policy which has not yet been formally raised either by the Administration or by the Democratic opposition. It is whether the level of military expenditures should be raised in view of the reverses in Indonesia.

PRINCETON HEAD SAYS CIVIL RIGHTS ARE ENDANGERED

PRINCETON, N.J., June 14 (AP)—President Harold W. Dodds of Princeton University said yesterday many persons, jittery over Communism seem to be willing to discard hard-won American civil rights.

In his baccalaureate address to Princeton's graduating class, Dodds said there are many people in the United States who "seem willing, even eager, to discard our slow-attained and bitterly earned ethical and legal code of civil rights, including the 10 commandments."

This tendency, he added, is the result of "our state of jitters about Communism" and lack of confidence in the ability of law enforcement agencies "to cope with subversion and treason."

"Undoubtedly national anxiety helps explain why the intellectual has been picked to be a whipping boy and has been bitterly sneered at as an egghead and why in the minds of some very long-winded and influential people, he has almost become America's number one danger," he said.

Dodds said there was a tendency toward Adolf Hitler's ideology and called on the seniors to "resist this philosophy to the end of your lives."

IMMANUEL LUTHERAN PASTOR HONORED, 35 YEARS' SERVICE

The Rev. John Oppiger was honored yesterday by the congregation of Immanuel Lutheran Church, Marcus and Lexington avenues, for his 35 years' service as pastor. He has spent his entire ministry at Immanuel.

When he was called to the church after graduation from Concordia Seminary in 1919, it was at Fifteenth street and Delmar boulevard. Because of business expansion in the neighborhood, the congregation had declined from 1500 to 150 members. A chapel was built on the present site in 1920 and in 1928 the present church was erected.

Ceremonies yesterday took place at the regular worship service. The Rev. Mr. Oppiger received a month's vacation and cash gifts. Mrs. Oppiger also was honored. The Rev. Mr. Oppiger is chairman of the board of control of Concordia Seminary.

WASHINGTON. WHILE GEN. EISENHOWER listed several measures which he hopes Congress will pass, he devoted most of his attention to his Thursday evening address, and by far the most energy, to his farm program. This is indeed the controversial measure which has the greatest practical importance.

For if Congress turns him down and insists upon rigid support of farm prices the Government will have to buy in huge surplus crops on top of the mountainous surplus it is already compelled to hold. Show Begins Week's Run—Eighth Time for Romberg's Play Here.

Sigmund Romberg's operetta "The New Moon" will make its eighth Municipal Opera appearance tonight when it opens a week's engagement at the Forest Park open-air theater. Performances will begin at 8:30 p.m. through Sunday night.

Cast of the show will be headed by Jean Fenn, Metropolitan Opera Company soprano, who will make her debut here as Marianne, and Edward Roemer, who will be singing the role of Robert Misson for the fourth time.

Also featured in the opera will be Frederic Tozer, as the villain Ribaud; Alexis Rotov, a ballet satirist, who will play the part of Alexander, and Diana Drake, who had the title role here in last year's production of "No, No, Nanette." She is cast as Julie, the maid.

Other principals are Raymond Oliver, Adina Rizer, Irving Fisher, Norbert Winkler, Harry Weber, Betty Winsett, Ralph Farnworth, Ed Herchert and the Di Gatanos dancing team.

The story of "The New Moon" is set in eighteenth century New Orleans. Its hero, Misson, is regarded as a pirate, although he actually is a chevalier devoted to the ideals of freedom.

Familiar Romberg songs include "Lover, Come Back to Me," "Stouthearted Men," "Softly, As a Morning Breeze," "Wanting You," and "One Kiss." Book and lyrics are by Oscar Hammerstein II, Frank Mandel and Laurence Schwab. Flag Day exercises will be held tonight prior to the show's opening.

500 SPECIALISTS IN TRAINING DEAF OPEN SESSIONS IN CITY

Qualified teachers and specialists are urgently needed to conduct educational programs for the deaf. Dr. Clarence D. O'Connor, president of the Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf, said here today.

Dr. O'Connor, addressing 500 educators, administrators, social workers and others interested in education of the deaf, said the basic objective of education for the deaf is to establish ease of communication in all its forms. He spoke at the opening session of the association's summer meeting at Hotel Chase.

Visitors to the meeting will be entertained tonight with an open house at the Central Institute for the Deaf, 900 South Kingshighway. They will be given demonstrations of the school, clinics and research facilities there. The meeting will end Friday.

Bode on his twenty-fifth anniversary as an ordained minister were held yesterday at St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed Church, Giles avenue and Potomac street, where he is pastor. Bode's mother, Mrs. Emilie Bode, widow of an Evangelical and Reformed minister, and his brother, the Rev. Paul Bode, minister of music at Trinity Evangelical and Reformed Church. The Rev. Dr. Bode recently received an honorary doctor of divinity degree from his alma mater, Elmhurst (Ill.) College.

POPE PIUS ENDS CEREMONIES CANONIZING 5 NEW SAINTS

VATICAN CITY, June 14 (UP)—Pope Pius XII yesterday climaxed two days of ceremonies marking the creation of five new Catholic saints by imparting a special apostolic benediction to Rome and the world from the central staircase of St. Peter's Basilica. An estimated 40,000 pilgrims, largely priests and nuns belonging to religious orders founded by the new saints, knelt in prayer in the square as the 78-year-old Pontiff intoned the benediction "vrbt et orbi" (to the city and the world) which carries a plenary indulgence to the faithful.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 14 (AP)—James Stewart Rogan, Indianapolis banker and civic leader, died unexpectedly Saturday of a heart attack at his home here. He was 68 years old.

A native of Brownwood, Tex., Rogan moved to Indianapolis in 1933, since which time he had been president of the American National Bank. He was a former vice president of both the East Bay National Bank, Oakland, Calif., and the Bank of America at San Francisco.

NEW TOOTH FILLING METHOD DESCRIBED

Dental Speaker Says Technique Is Faster, Less Painful for Patient.

A faster method of preparing teeth for fillings, which results in better quality work and is less painful for the patient, was described here today.

In a paper presented at the eighty-ninth annual meeting of the Missouri State Dental Association in Hotel Jefferson, Dr. Meigs Jones of Kansas City predicted the new method—already being used by about 25 per cent of the nation's dentists—eventually will supplant slower techniques.

This, he said, will enable dentists to serve more patients and, because the method makes less physical demands on the dentist, should prolong the years he can practice.

The technique, Dr. Jones explained, consists of using high speed motors and carbide or diamond cutting instruments for removal of decay from teeth. Development of the new method followed World War II, he said. Until then motors used at 3500 revolutions a minute and there had been little change in basic cutting instruments, steel burs, in about a century, the hand pressure is required and vibration, friction and noise—all sources of pain—are reduced.

These factors enable the dentist to prepare teeth better, he asserted. About 1200 are attending the sessions, which include programs for dentists' wives and dental assistants, as well as for the dentists. The convention started yesterday and will end Wednesday.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Thelma L. Lewis, and a daughter, Miss Lorraine Lewis, both of the Lindworth lane address.

FIRST LOVEJOY SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED TO ALTON YOUTH

Sterling Scales, 17-year-old graduate of Alton Senior High School, yesterday received the first annual college scholarship awarded by the Elijah P. Lovejoy Memorial Association.

Scales, a Negro, who lives with his mother at 909 Union street, Alton, will enter the pre-dental course at the University of Illinois next fall. He achieved an average grade of 96.22 in his four years of high school.

The announcement was made by J. A. Brewer, treasurer of the Elijah P. Lovejoy Memorial Association, at a flag day program at the grave of the martyred abolitionist editor in Alton. Fire Chief James J. Lewis spoke on half of the City of Alton. Other officers of the association, which is currently conducting a drive for additional scholarship funds, are J. L. Cannon, president, and J. M. Bailey, secretary, both of Alton.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Yes, Indeed, No Penthouses

WASHINGTON. IN THE middle 1920s, which seems such a silly simple, care-free time in backward glance, there was a crazy song, "Yes—We Have No Bananas." Mechanically it came, over and over, from the player piano in the dimly lit speakeasy; and more musically, over and over, from the country club orchestra.

"Yes—we have no bananas, we have no bananas today." Remember? We had tomatoes and scallions and radishes and rutabaga and so on—but no bananas. Wacky? Yes, and it was a wacky era. Bathing gin, needed near-beer, flappers with rolled stockings, reckless speculation on the stock market. We called it the "new era."

When everybody was going to get richer and richer, month by month and year by year. Some of us remember, perhaps with varying emotions, how it all ended—in the stock market crash and depression—from which, incidentally, the Democrats still remind us that they rescued us.

Then ABC Agencies. Once-flamboyant financial wizards lost everything. Some jumped out of windows in high buildings. Some got down to their last Rolls-Royce and Palm Beach house. Some did not even have a penthouse to putter around in.

And, as for the plain folks, it was "no bananas" for them. So the Republicans were kicked out and the Democrats came whooping in on "Happy Days Are Here Again," full of ideas and energy. After a time, cabbage soup went out and bananas came back—and finally, prosperity, helped along eventually by war.

Never So Good.

Alphabet agencies, hastily created, reorganized our economy so it would work—and people could find work. Among the early ones was HOLC, Home Owners Loan Corporation, to save homes; and in time FHA, Federal Housing Administration, to help finance new homes for you and me, the folks.

They refined this FHA affair so plain folks could get what they termed "repair and modernization loans" for all sorts of things for the home. Even penthouses.

But the party of the common man got beat two years ago. Some disillusioned Democrats, after an analysis of the downfall, came up with the theory that it was just such beneficence as has been mentioned that was responsible—moving the common man into a suburban community behind government-financed venetian blinds and making him a middle-class master of a government-financed barbecue pit.

It Had to End.

That makes folks Republicans. You've got to keep them a little hungry if you want to keep them Democrats.

In time this new millennium for the home owner attracted the racketeers—which is usual among us. They went about the land making the people in suburban communities penthouse, greenhouse, bathroom and kennel-conscious. They charged really extortionate prices for shabby stuff and made a fancy profit out of government money.

It had to come to an end—and did. How it all came out at senatorial investigations is recent history. And now, just last week, the FHA has issued its decree forbidding any more loans for those things that made Republicans out of Democrats.

Yes—we have no penthouses, we have no penthouses today.

The Biggest Mistake?

That is what hurts. The other things we could do without, those other gadgets that FHA cut out—tennis courts, kennels, greenhouses, venetian blinds, fire alarms, burglar alarms, lawn sprinkling systems, fire extinguishers, radiator covers, bathtubs, television antennae, and so on.

But penthouses! Oh me, and oh my!

This FHA adversity order may be the biggest mistake the Republicans have yet made, once more transforming the middle-class family, with its government-financed burglar alarms, fire alarms and outdoor fireplaces, into a common-man family without even a penthouse to putter around in.

"No bananas" made Democrats before. "No penthouses" could make them again.

Ezzard Charles Training for Wrong Kind of Fight, Joe Louis Says

Champion Is in Top Condition

MONTICELLO, N.Y., June 14 (AP)—Joe Louis thinks Ezzard Charles is training for the wrong kind of fight in his bid to win back the heavyweight title in his bout with Rocky Marciano Thursday night at Yankee Stadium.

"The Bomber watched Ezz go five rounds yesterday, pressing the attack as though he meant to carry the fight to Rocky."

"You don't go in there and mix with Marciano," said the former champ who Saturday called Marciano "stale." In answer to a question, Louis admitted it would be suicide for Charles to mix with the champ. "The way to beat Marciano should be to stick with your left and then throw the right when he misses. If Charles fights Rocky-like he fought against me, he could beat Marciano. But he doesn't seem to be training for that kind of fight."

"Tom Tannas, one of Charles' co-managers, said the 32-year-old Cincinnati Negro was perfectly tuned for his best fight. "Mentally he was never better," he said. "And he's just as good physically as when he fought Louis."

Charles planned one more workout, and possibly two, before he breaks camp Wednesday afternoon. His five-round drill boosted his training total to 143 rounds. Marciano finished the heavy work yesterday, going two rounds with Keene Simmons for

As Mizzou Beat the Aggies

Missouri University's EMIL KAMMER, a Normandy High graduate, slides into third after hitting a triple in a N.C.A.A. baseball tournament game against Oklahoma A. & M. at Omaha. HENRY WALKER is the third base man for the Aggies, who lost to Mizzou, 7 to 3.

a total of 183 rounds since April 2. He will loosen up with a little shadow boxing to hold the edge. "I'm in the best physical condition of my career," he said. "I'm certain in my own mind that I'm a much better fighter than I've ever been. I came up to Grossinger's early with just one thing in mind... to practice up a lot of different things. I'm completely satisfied."

Missouri Opposes Spartans In NCAA Baseball Meet

OMAHA, June 14 (AP)—Michigan State and Missouri, two of the "big" in the N.C.A.A. college baseball world series here, tangled tonight to see who plays Rollins College, one of the smallest ever to get to the tourney, for the championship.

The championship game will be played tomorrow night. All three teams now have tourney records of 3-1. The meet is a double elimination affair.

They were bunched up when Michigan State edged Rollins, 3-2, in 10 innings last night, and Missouri ousted Oklahoma A. & M., 7-3, Saturday night. Rollins had clipped Michigan State, 5-4, with a two-run last-of-the-ninth rally.

Also, Missouri's Big Seven Conference champs, are fully aware that if they get to Rollins, the moundman they doubtless will face will be southpaw Art Brophy, a tiny southpaw who has caught the eye of several major league scouts. Brophy was the one who beat them in the second round.

Michigan State beat Tauscher, appearing in a relief role, on a sharp single by John Blach, who had failed in two other chances to knock in runs.

Steady pitching by Missouri sophomore Norm Stewart and extra base slugging by his teammates eliminated the Aggies. Stewart, backed up by sharp fielding, scattered 12 A. and M. hits.

The nine Missouri safeties included towering home runs in the fifth by centerfielder Jerry Schoonmaker and catcher George Gleason.

Missouri jumped into a 3-0 lead in the third inning on Stewart's first hit of the year and singles by Todd Sichel, Bob Musgrave, and Gleason.

Missouri added two more in the fourth on a walk and a triple by Emil Kammer.

The Aggies piled up seven hits in five innings but managed only one run off consecutive doubles in the fifth by Fred Babb and Ronnie Bennett. In the sixth, a single and two Missouri errors scored another run.

In the other Saturday night games, Oklahoma A. & M. had clipped Arizona, 5-4, in 14 innings, the longest game in tourney history—the previous record was the 9-5 win over the Aggies by Rollins in the opening round of this tourney—and Missouri downed Massachusetts, 8-1.

Glackin's 2279 Takes Title in State Archery

The National champion, St. Louis's Bill Glackin, had no trouble in winning the Missouri title, as the state's archery meet was completed yesterday at Forest Park. Glackin totaled 2279 points against 2159 by his nearest competitor, Jack Deutman, in the Class A division.

Lou Freimuth was third with 2032 points. Glackin was also first in the men's clout shoot and Deutman again was runner-up.

In the women's Class A competition, Garnet Gowan was tops with 2080 points. Clara Hoyt had 1981 and Vera Hennessey, 1921.

A score of 890 enabled Jackie Couse, national girls' cadet champion, to take first in that division, although she was unable to shoot a complete round because of an injury.

Don Monroe of Manhattan, Kan., took the special award for out-of-town archers with a two-day total of 1393. John Argust's 1232 topped the list of those who competed only yesterday.

Don't let the worry of washing clothes spoil the fun of being a mother — and a wife!

Let them romp! Soiled clothes are never a problem when you team your automatic up with all. Washer manufacturers prescribe this controlled suds detergent for carefree, cleaner washing!

WHEN YOU USE all, your washer turns out cleaner, fresher, brighter clothes than it possibly can if it's all jammed up with heavy suds.

Instead of wasting its power in suds on top of the wash water, all stays on the job down in the water where the dirty clothes are getting washed.

There all captures the dirt—and hangs on to it—till it rinses down the drain. all does this in its own special way.

"Controlled suds" make all the difference

An automatic washer is designed to swirl and slosh the clothes around freely, so the stubbornest dirt will come out.

But heavy suds smother this vital washing action. In heavy suds clothes just slither lazily around and come out only half clean. Instead of working into useless, wasteful suds, all permits full washing action so every trace of dirt comes out.

The wonderful difference shows up in the whiteness of your linens, the softness of your towels, and the clear, true colors of your dresses.

Complete rinsing is all-important

You know how hard it is to get rid of suds when you wash clothes or dishes by hand.

Well, it's hard for your washer, too. Thick suds glue themselves to the clothes and won't rinse out thoroughly even after three or four rinse cycles.

But all's controlled suds rinse out quickly and completely, usually in the first rinse cycle. No dingy suds-film is left to discolor fabrics. No harsh suds-curd remains to cause skin irritation. Even nappy fabrics like baby diapers are soft, fluffy and hygienically clean.

Specially prescribed by washer makers themselves

You may be sure leading automatic washer manufacturers made plenty of tests before they singled out all as the right prescription for perfect home laundering results.

The reason all was selected is because it cures all the disappointments the old thick-suds detergents caused.

Now 9 washer makers consider all so superior that they actually pack a box of it in each new machine before it leaves the factory.

That's their way of making sure you start right out with perfect washing results.

You save bleach, bluing and water softener

Each box of all contains everything you need for cleanest washing. You don't have to bother adding a bleach, bluing or water softener.

Built right into all is a special whitening agent that is better than a bleach because it's extra gentle—and just the right amount of water softener for most hard water areas.

Measure out the amount of all the package recommends—and you're sure of getting the clean-smelling, soft-feeling wash your dealer promised you when he sold you your automatic.

Read all's special offer

Try all next time you wash. It's wonderful for the dirtiest work and play clothes, for dainty lingerie, for baby's things. It's recommended unconditionally for the new miracle fabrics like Acrilan, Dynel, Orlon and nylon.

If all isn't the finest detergent you have ever used, your dealer has been instructed to refund your money. Monsanto Chemical Company, St. Louis, Missouri.

All Kinds of Love On This Program

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, June 14. I SUPPOSE sooner or later there had to be a program dedicated to love, and DuMont has thoughtfully plugged that hole in the national program structure with a show called "Love Story." If you have had your fill of Milton Berle and are seeking a complete change of diet, well, this is it.

Of course, any program so conceived and so dedicated is bound to get a little sticky now and then, love being what it is. On "Love Story," they got all kinds of love— young love, old love, married love. One story, for example, concerned a husband and wife writing team in which the marriage sprang a leak because the pair got to criticizing one another's prose with complete, though foolish candor. Naturally, no love, no matter how strong, can withstand a withering blast of criticism, writers being a touchy lot.

THIS ONE HAD Basil Rathbone as the writer whose prose was under fire and a thin surface coating of urbanity to recommend it. "What's the trouble," says one character. "Tell me 10 per cent of it. I'm your agent."

"As bad as that, eh?" That's about as clever as the dialogue ever gets on "Love Story" (seen in St. Louis on WTVI Tuesday evenings), but on the whole it's reasonably honest and devoid of strain.

SOME OF THE PLOTS are a good deal more soapy and tearful than the mixup between the husband and wife team (which was settled with a kiss and the handsome admission from Mr. Rathbone that the chapter in question was just as bad as his wife had said it was, an improbable confession if ever I heard one.) Another story concerns a mother (Betty Field) whose drunkard of a husband has deserted her and her two children. Suddenly she discovers she has a disease (unspecified) which will kill her in six months to a year. What to do about the children? This problem is resolved, too, after rather more pulls at my heartstrings than I normally care about.

STILL ANOTHER ONE was a boy-meets-girl, boy-gets-girl story with no intervening nonsense about boy losing girl. The girl in the case was a sheriff in a decidedly odd little town where no crime ever intrudes. As one character explains: "No sense in killing anyone here. We got so much time on our hands we'd just as soon wait around for him to die of his own accord." Lee Bowman, as the boy, contributed a fine, light performance to this one and Peggy McCay, as the girl, was mighty cute, which was about all that was demanded of her. The only thing you won't find on "Love Story"—or anyway, I haven't found it yet—is the grand passion. No one has yet swum the Hellsport for love but I expect they will eventually.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

CONVERSATION ceased when the sheriff burst into the back room of Connor's grocery, where four old cronies were gathered around a table. "Gotcha," chorused the sheriff. "Playin' cards again!" "Not me," asserted one of the cronies. "I'm just a'sittin' and a'talkin'." "And me," put in the second, "I'm just a'sittin' and a'talkin'." "Me nuther," added the third. "I'm just a'sittin' and a'talkin' at the stove." The fourth sheriff turned on the fourth, who was caught with the whole deck of cards in his hand. "At least, you can't deny you was playin'," he shouted.

"Me, sheriff," was the answer, in a tone of deep hurt. "Who'd I be a'playin' with?" HERE'S AN EXCERPT from the diary of a 17-year-old girl, dated Dec. 24, 1836: "From my dear Mamma I received a beautiful gold buckle in the shape of two serpents, two handkerchiefs, a very pretty black satin apron trimmed with red velvet, and two almanacks. From dear Uncle Leopold I received a beautiful turquoise ring." The diarist was Victoria, destined to be Queen of England within six months. The "Uncle Leopold" who remembered Christmas in such handsome fashion was the King of Belgium.

WARD MOREHOUSE'S first assignment, when he landed a reporter's job on the old New York Tribune in 1919, was to sound out Prof. Jacoby at Columbia University on the Einstein Theory. Ward didn't tell the assistant managing editor, whom he describes as "slim, dark, brilliant, and sardonic" (and whose name was Lester Markel), that down Georgia way he never had even heard of the Einstein Theory. Up to Columbia he subverted to discover that Dr. Jacoby was disinclined to be interviewed unless he jolly well got paid for it. Ward phoned Markel who, deeply impressed, exclaimed, "Good heavens! I didn't know there was a business man on Morningside Heights! Give him $50!" Ward has considered himself an expert on relativity ever since.

Dogs of the Week

Two English setter sisters at the Humane Society Shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue, are looking for permanent homes. They'll be glad to go together, but are willing to be separated. They'd prefer a home with some children, of course. Maybe one in which there's a boy who'll be old enough to begin hunting with his dad in a year or two, after one or both of the pups have been trained in the field. The pups are about two months old. They are available for adoption on application, in person, at the shelter.

Pitching Horseshoes

Big and Little

By Billy Rose

NEW YORK.

UP at my place in Mt. Kisco, I've got a couple of gadgets which come in mighty handy whenever I get confused. Which is practically every hour on the hour.

One of these gadgets is a Breaker-Downer, a device guaranteed to shrink a swelled head. It is called a Breaker-Downer. The second gadget is a Builder-Upper, an instrument which will make the average person feel a hundred feet tall. It is known as a microscope.

Here's how I use these dinges...

Whenever I get to thinking I'm quite a chunk of something, I set up the telescope on my back porch and take a peek into the wild black yonder. Then, to check on exactly how small I am by comparison with what I see in my telescope, I thumb through a book by one of the younger astronomers. At the moment, it's "The Nature of the Universe," by Fred Hoyle of Oxford University.

FOR INSTANCE, this book tells me that if I were to build a scale model of the visible universe and place a marble on my desk to represent the earth, the sun, about the size of a basketball, would be 200 yards away. However, the nearest star, Alpha Centauri, would be somewhere south of Singapore—11,000 miles from the marble on my desk.

This star, to take it a step farther, would be practically on top of me as compared with most other stars. For example, the constellation called Andromeda would be two and a half billion miles away from my marble. And, mind you, I'm only talking about our own cozy little galaxy, the Milky Way.

THE CRUSHER, according to astronomers, is that we will never know how far our universe extends, if, indeed, there is an end to it. The most distant galaxies are skiddling away from us at a speed approaching the speed of light—186,000 miles a second—and if there are galaxies further out in space, they are probably going faster than the speed of light, and consequently their rays will never reach any telescope on earth.

So, you can see why, after half an hour of playing celestial Peeping Tom, this fat head of mine shrinks down to normal proportions—billiard-ball size.

NOW FOR THE BUILDER-UPPER—the microscope. As good a way as any to start using this gadget is to take a smear of water from the old pond and inspect the critters in it. You'll see squirming blobs of jelly called amoebas; slipper-shaped animals called Paramecium; microscopic fleas which, in turn, have fleas, and other Protosia in the shape of bells, stars, trumpets and globes. In fact, every quart of warm sea water contains a whole lilliputian empire of whatchamacallits—4,000,000 of them—more than the population of Chicago. And, as you'll soon discover, these bantam bugs live the full life, eating, fighting, multiplying, loafing and occasionally killing each other, very much like the people of Chicago.

How can this pint-size panorama prop up a droopy ego? Well, for one thing, it always makes a little fellow feel good when he sees something littler. (I am speaking from experience: I never miss a Mickey Rooney picture.)

ACTUALLY, THOUGH, even the world under the microscope is gigantic compared to the atoms and molecules which our finest electron microscopes can't make out. A billion molecules would fit comfortably on the head of a pin and, if you think that's small, each molecule is made up of atoms which, in turn, are composed of electrons spinning around a nucleus at up to 80,000 miles a second.

In other words, dear reader, a good secondhand microscope is the Rose Jim-Dandy System for building yourself up after somebody has laid you out flat. The thing you've got to watch out for, I find, is that the microscope and telescope, taken together, may make you more confused than you already are.

If that happens, to steady yourself, I recommend you open any of the standard books on organic chemistry. You'll find that in 1944, had your carcass been cooked down properly, the chemicals in it would have been worth exactly 37 cents. Today, thanks to inflation, everybody is worth a heck of a lot more—72 cents. By 1970, who knows, each of us may be worth as much as a buck.

Value of Schooling

By Angelo Patri

RACE is 16 years old, a healthy young woman in her last year in high school. She protested strongly about going to school this last year, but her father insisted that she must at least be graduated from high school.

"You should go to college, but if you don't want to there is no sense in sending you. You will regret it though if you don't get a good education and fit yourself for useful work."

"I'm going to be married as soon as I can, so why should I have to go to school. I don't need to know all that stuff—Latin, algebra—what good will that be to me I'd like to know?"

PARENTS ARE OFTEN hard put to it in such cases. They know that the child who is talking this way is the very one who needs all the education she can get, but one can't hold her nose and pour it down like castor oil.

But one can talk. One can point to women who had a college education and who did marry and rear a fine family. The child can be told of people who went to college and stayed until they earned a diploma, took a job for a couple of years, married and headed a good home and a fine family.

It is hard to get a young person to understand the hazards of life. Youth does not hear, or see, because experience still awaits them and without experience they do not, cannot, interpret life. But we can tell them of persons who did not attend school, those who might have and did not, as well as those who could not, and point out the difference between their lives and the lives of those who had a sound education. That might help.

TEACHERS CAN DO a great deal toward interesting young people in higher education. A teacher is an educated person and if he is the kind that makes them want to be like him, he has a means of encouraging them to want what college offers.

To the ambitious one, eager to earn money, the teacher can point out that every year of schooling adds dollars to income, opens more guarded doors—the doors to the most coveted places. Education can be made to look glamorous, even for the girl who is set on marriage.

Marriage implies motherhood, and that is a career for which education is essential. Every mother wants her children to be and to have all that is best in life and the more she knows of science, art, history and literature, the more she can apply to the rearing of her children.

AS regularly as summer rolls around, someone is bound to bring up the topic of "heating" foods. What are they? Should they be avoided?

In the literal sense, all foods are heating. That is to say, after digestion and absorption, they supply fuel for the body's activities. If we eat more than we need, the residue will be stored as fat.

For some unknown reason, oatmeal and dried beans seem to have acquired a reputation as heating foods to be avoided in warm weather. There is no basis for this prejudice.

There is no reason not to have oatmeal for breakfast and baked beans for lunch or supper. Baked beans are especially popular for picnic use. One of my friends told me recently that she likes to have some on hand and often starts the bean pot bubbling when she is cooking a roast. This is possible with the low-temperature roasting which is now so often used.

Some of us like the old-fashioned New England or Boston type baked beans. Others prefer or like for a change highly seasoned Mexican type beans, for which we use a red or kidney bean.

One quart pea beans, three-quarters cup salt pork, one tablespoon salt, one teaspoon dry mustard, three-quarters cup molasses, one cup boiling water. Wash and pick over beans. Soak in two quarts cold water 12 hours. Drain, cover with fresh water, bring to boiling point and simmer over low heat until skins burst when tested. To test, take up a few beans with spoon and blow. When skins break, the beans are tender enough.

Drain beans and place in bean pot. Scrape rind of salt pork and cut several gashes in the meat. Press into beans. Mix salt, mustard, molasses and boiling water, and pour over beans. Add more boiling water, if necessary, to cover beans. Cover and bake in very slow oven (250 degrees Fahrenheit) six to eight hours. Add more water when necessary. Uncover and bake 30 minutes longer, until a brown crust has formed. Yield: 10 to 12 servings.

Note: If desired, one medium-sized onion, minced, may be baked with the beans.

Baked Kidney Beans. One-half pound dry kidney beans, or 2 cans kidney beans; one clove garlic, minced; two medium-sized onions, sliced; one stalk celery, diced; one small green pepper, shredded; one tablespoon molasses, one-half can tomato paste, salt and pepper to taste, one-quarter pound salt pork, or two tablespoons shortening.

If dry beans are used, soak several hours in water and cook about 30 minutes until skins wrinkle. Combine beans, the liquor in which they have been cooked or canned, and other ingredients in bean pot or baking dish. Cover and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) one hour. Remove cover and bake 10 minutes more. Yield: Six servings.

Fix It Yourself

WALLPAPER can be applied over old wallpaper or oil paint provided that the paper or paint is securely fastened to the wall. It should not be applied over water-thinned paints, or over calcimine. The water in the paste might soften up the paint and cause all sorts of trouble.

Wallpaper can be applied over plaster walls and plasterboard walls without any complications just as long as they are solid and free from cracks or seams. Wallpaper can also be applied over plywood walls but the plywood should first be covered with a lightweight felt. This is necessary to prevent the water in the wallpaper paste raising the wood grain in the plywood which might give the paper a rough sort of texture.

You can apply wallpaper over insulating board but it should not be applied over the seams because it eventually will crack along this point. The usual treatment is to paper each panel of insulating board and then use decorative strips of molding over the joints. This can produce a very nice over-all effect.

Never apply wallpaper directly over masonry such as brick or concrete for should the masonry become damp either through leakage or through condensation you are going to be in for a lot of trouble.

Secrets of Charm
Selecting Your Perfume

CHOOSE A PERFUME THAT SUITS YOUR PERSONALITY.

WEARING perfume only on special occasions is like making up your eyes only on Wednesdays. Perfume should be a constant expression of your personality, another of those little ways of saying you're you.

You have been in a crowded elevator, or sat in a dark theater, when the scent of a fragrance worn by a near neighbor was virtually overpowering. The woman who is guilty of applying too much perfume is probably the woman who goes to other extremes—in dress, or manner—to set herself apart from the crowd. Such is not the way of the truly charming woman.

Perfume must be chosen correctly, handled correctly. Learn today how to make a choice by sampling odors through two little tests. Then you'll never be disappointed with a scent that doesn't seem the same when you open the bottle at home.

AT THE PERFUME counter, you'll find "testers"—small bottles for you to try; choose a scent in this way: hold your forefinger tightly over your left nostril and sniff the scent with your right. Then reverse position, and sniff with your left nostril. Finally hold the bottle directly under your nose and take a sniff with both nostrils.

The reasoning behind such test is this: Your olfactory nerves are seldom any better balanced than your left or right hands. So it requires this left-right method to give you an accurate estimate of the true odor of any perfume.

A second test is wrist sampling. Put a little of the perfume on your wrist. Let it dry thoroughly, then sniff. You will be able to tell how the perfume suits you as it warms to and blends with your skin. (It's quite different in the bottle, or when worn by someone else.)

Just because you like the scent after these tests, don't splurge on a big, big bottle. Select a moderate size first. Later you can invest in the large economy bottle, when you're sure through the final test of wearing that this is your favorite fragrance.

DO TWO THINGS when you take the bottle home: Open it at once and fill an atomizer. (The atomizer way is the most successful way to apply perfume, and the most economical.) Then fill a small flask to slip into your purse where it will always be handy.

Get into the habit of buying perfume for yourself. That way you'll be sure of suiting the scent to your very own personality. You will always have enough of it, too!

Here's a hint for the use of the several fragrances on your dressing table: match the thing you smell with something you see—your jewelry. If you wear floral earrings, then a floral scent is a nice touch. If your choice is chunky, sophisticated jewelry, spray your pulse spots with a more heady perfume.

Calling Him the "Ship Chandler"—First Cousin to a Candlestick.

THE correspondent who poses the question of this name, "ship chandler," defines it as connoting "the tradesman who supplies the ship with alcoholic refreshment." He goes on to remark that as a passenger on an ocean liner, when he inquired about wines which he might purchase abroad and bring in under United States Customs regulations, he was referred to the "ship chandler" in a foreign port.

Let us state first of all that the term is applied not only to tradesmen dealing in cordage, canvas, other ship gear and alcoholic beverages, but to dealers in various other commodities—as for example a corn chandler.

What is interesting about this word is its relationship with chandler, which we have taken bodily from the French to name a lighting fixture, especially the variety which has several branches and hangs from the ceiling. These words share the same origin—in the Latin "candela," candle. From this came the late Latin "candelarius," a maker or seller of candles—and the chandler—first cousin to the chandler, or candlestick!

A Report on Doubling Up Of Families

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

THERE is no doubt about it, couples who have to double up and share living accommodations with others usually find life less satisfactory than having a home of their own. Thousands have just come through this experience as a result of the war; although conditions are better now, they still have not solved the housing problem satisfactorily. But just how bad was it for these people?

Sociologist William M. Smith Jr. of Pennsylvania State University lately questioned 490 married couples and found that three-fourths of them had some experience in living with their parents after marriage or, if older, living in the same house with one or more of their married children.

WHAT DID THEY THINK of the idea? You may be surprised to learn that 14 per cent thought it was "a good idea," while 50 per cent said "it will work sometimes" and only 35 per cent said the idea was "no good." You may be even more surprised to learn that the plan of doubling up was favored slightly more by those who experienced it than by those who had not tried it.

What good is there in it? None, said 16 per cent of those who had tried it, while 37 per cent said "companionship," 14 per cent said "being able to help" and another 14 per cent replied realistically, "a place to live." Economy, and help in baby-sitting and other ways, got mention from a few.

There are always financial arrangements to be made in such cases and Sociologist Smith mentions the following replies representing the way this problem was worked out: paid board, did housework, shared expenses, paid room and board, paid rent, did all the upkeep, would money to child, and finally those who said flatly that the visitors contributed nothing.

ON THE NEGATIVE SIDE 31 per cent claimed nothing particularly bothered them about doubling up, while the remainder listed the following difficulties: too crowded, no privacy, our ways are different, we handle children differently, interference or wanting to interfere, interrupting married life, "they got on my nerves," added work in caring for an invalid, parent was old and crabby, or on the other hand, "it felt that it was an imposition on them." But there was not much difference in the number of complaints, whether the house was large or small.

"Large houses were crowded and small houses were only more crowded," Smith explains. In spite of this relatively favorable report, no one should plan to spend his old age in this way if there is any other possibility; and most of Smith's informants agreed they would avoid it if possible. When couples were asked, "Do you plan to live with your children eventually?" 15 per cent said yes and 85 per cent came out with a flat no.

DO TWO THINGS when you take the bottle home: Open it at once and fill an atomizer. (The atomizer way is the most successful way to apply perfume, and the most economical.) Then fill a small flask to slip into your purse where it will always be handy.

Refinish for Table Top

By Elizabeth Hillyer

WHAT finish for a table top? Since the first piece of furniture to need refinishing is so often a handsome living room table, the answer must be a good one, a sturdy finish that makes no compromise with good looks.

What finish stands up to stress, keeps the beauty of the wood and is easy for a first-time refinisher to apply? Today's excellent problem solver for table tops is alkyd resin varnish.

Varnishes are easier to work with than lacquer, and this comparatively new kind is especially hard-drying and mar-resistant. And it can be water-white, which means that it is really colorless and not tinged with yellow as most so-called clear varnishes are, to make it easier to produce a preferred color.

Of course it is best to refinish the whole table, and success at the finish line depends on perfect preparation of the wood. Varnish remover first and sanding, and sometimes lost filler should be replaced. Stain follows if there is to be a change of color, and the water-white varnish goes over it to keep the exact shade.

MRS. P. G. "We are building a modern ranch house with a large living room and dining ell. The fireplace mantel extends the length of one wall. I am selection of turquoise for the walls, beige wall-to-wall carpet, cocoa brown circular sofa with orange, turquoise and yellow pillows correct? Would draperies be correct or should I use a print? Would the walls be better in a brown tone?"

Matching draperies to walls creates a simple, unified background which makes a room look more spacious and is particularly pleasing in this type of house, but in this room the result would perhaps be too much domination by the brightest major color in the scheme. You might like the brown tone for the walls better if draperies match, and turquoise for furniture and accessories. However, the room would be successful with turquoise walls and draperies in beige or a quiet print with a beige background.

Tea Today To Present Miss Hein

A WHITE and pink tea this afternoon will serve to introduce Miss Cynthia Hein to society. Guests arriving at the home of the debutante's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clemence L. Hein, 7023 Westmoreland drive, University City, will be received before the living room mantel which is decorated with a double arrangement of white and pink roses.

The tea table in the dining room, covered with white, will be centered with pink flowers while another table on the patio with a pink damask cloth will be adorned with white roses.

For her coming-out party Miss Hein will wear the gown in which she served as maid of honor at the Villed Prophet ball last October. Strapless and worn with a tulle stole, the gown is fashioned of many layers of white and came pink tulle. The bodice is tucked; the skirt, falling over a pleated lace, has a cluster of white roses on drapery at one side of the skirt. She will carry a white thousand-petal rose. A similar rose will form a corsage for Mrs. Hein who will wear a white tissue faille sheath gown designed with back drapery accented with aqua.

Assisting at the tea table will be the debutante's sister, Miss Lee Hein; four of this year's debutantes, Miss Sue Sullivan, Miss Beverlee Hampton, Miss Barbara Hoffman and Miss Deborah Smith, and four members of Kappa Kappa Gamma, Miss Hein's sorority at Washington University, Miss Nancy Larson, Miss Edith Gould, Miss Jeanne Brossard and Miss Nancy Groves. Mrs. Hein will be assisted by her two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Gale Faulconer Johnston and Mrs. Richard Beard Russell.

Here from out-of-town will be Mrs. Frederick Groves and Mrs. John Tuckey, both of Cape Girardeau, Mo. An alumna of John Burroughs School, today's debutante attended Randolph-McBee Women's College, Lynchburg, Va., for a year before entering Washington University.

EARLIER in the day a debutante of this season, Miss Sue Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hicks Sullivan, and a debutante of the approaching year, Miss Caroline Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Philip Meyer, shared honors at a luncheon. The party was given by John C. Harris, 27 Picardy lane, Ladue.

Guests at the party were Miss Mary Baldwin, Miss Eloise Cella, Miss Eugenie Wallace, Miss Sandra Mudd, Mrs. G. W. Hoffmann, Miss Katherine Wagner, Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones, Miss Mary John Wilson and her houseguest, Miss Nancy Richardson and Miss Elizabeth Brandon. Mrs. Harris also entertained Mrs. Meyer and Mrs. Sullivan.

The wedding of Miss Genevieve Mary Ezer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Ezer, 24 Crestwood drive, Clayton, to William John Kiburz, scheduled to take place Wednesday morning at our Lady of Lourdes Church, has been temporarily postponed because of illness in the family. Mr. Kiburz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Young Kiburz, 7051 Pershing avenue, University City.

Invitations were received today by debutantes of the current season for the annual ball of the Bachelorette Club, June 25, at St. Louis Country Club. The party, starting at 10 o'clock, will be a token of appreciation from young men who have attended debutante parties given by parents and friends of the young women presented to society in the season ending early next month. Elias S. Gatch II is president of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hale Rand, Barnes road, Ladue, will entertain a group at dinner at the Country Club earlier that evening for Miss Eloise Cella, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Cella, 8 Upper Ladue road, Ladue.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Morehead have sold their home, 7 Ladue lane, and departed last Monday for California to live. They went immediately to La Jolla and will visit in several cities before deciding on a permanent location.

Objections To Indian Legislation

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.
I've received a letter which I would like to quote to you. "Now that the American people are rejoicing over the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court ending segregation in public schools," it reads, "it seems the moment to call everyone's attention to the fact that the United States treaty of 1868 with the Navajos obligated the Government to provide a teacher and a classroom for every 30 children, and that a recent bulletin from the Indian Bureau states that there are now 14,000 Navajo children of school age for whom no education is provided."

Some of the tribes have potential wealth. Many of them are living in poverty. They have, however, served in our armies and fought for the United States. They are certainly entitled to full citizenship. But it should not come to them as a hardship added to the burdens of poverty and lack of education. It should be given them only when we know they are prepared to accept it and find it possible to protect themselves.

"LAST YEAR," President Eisenhower signed a bill creating Public Law 280 although he said that it was "un-Christian" and wished it changed by the next Congress. I am having sent to you an issue of the Christian Century with an article by John Collier telling of new bills that will cause still greater hardship for the Indians if enacted into law, and also the bulletin of the National Congress of American Indians which gives their objections to this legislation.

"Since Public Law 280 is 'un-Christian,' should it not be repealed and the line reorganization act of 1934 again become the law for all Indians?" "It is of great importance that any law granting statehood to Alaska should insure the protection of all Indians and Eskimos and their full rights and provide for enforcement thereof. I understand that the present draft does not make this clear."

THIS IS a thought-provoking letter because there is a great deal of argument as to the best way to treat our Indian population. They have been wards of the state. They should by this time be ready, had we given them all we had hoped to give them, to become independent citizens of the United States. But we have not been completely successful in achieving the maximum education and preparation. Therefore, there is a grave question whether they are ready to accept their full responsibilities as citizens, and it is the duty of the Government to see that they are protected until it has taken measures to make them able to look after themselves.

In every community there are people ready to exploit the weak, and it seems to me very essential that we should not forget this part of our population which has not been as fairly treated through the years as the great majority of our people had hoped it would be.

Some of the tribes have potential wealth. Many of them are living in poverty. They have, however, served in our armies and fought for the United States. They are certainly entitled to full citizenship. But it should not come to them as a hardship added to the burdens of poverty and lack of education. It should be given them only when we know they are prepared to accept it and find it possible to protect themselves.

A three-tiered skirt is among the novelty cotton fashions to be worn with a contrasting or a matching blouse. One blouse has a scoop neckline that ties at the shoulders. Another has a shirred shoulder extending sufficiently wide to cover the top of the arm.

International Designer's Pattern

It can be said with absolute accuracy that Nancy Layton truly operates on an international scale. Each season she imports to America from the now diverse European fashion marts, an entire collection of day to evening clothes to copy exactly or modify according to the tastes of her chic clients. Her discerning eye and innate taste are known and respected on both sides of the ocean, for her successful selecting never wavers. Her jacket ensemble today is typical of this success. Utterly simple, all emphasis is placed on line, artfully molded and cut to focus attention at once to the graceful curving of bosom, waist and hips. The shoulders have an exaggerated slope which makes a lovely fold from the shoulder tip to the Y-shaped darts on either side of the jacket—all of which adds up to a good bosom line. The skirt is gored in back, has two front box pleats emerging from the darts of the bodice and following those of the jacket. It's best in a stiff fabric, so Mrs. Layton suggests faille, bengaline or a crisp cotton and petticoats to make the skirt a standout.

Casserole Recipe
Cut raw carrots and celery in pieces about the same size; cook together in a small amount of boiling salted water just until tender. Drain and add to a well-seasoned cream sauce, turn into a casserole and brown in a hot oven or under the broiler. Delicious for a company meal featuring roast beef or lamb; good with chicken or duck, too.

Vitamin C Source
When spinach and green cabbage are eaten raw they are a good source of vitamin C, but most of this vitamin is lost when the vegetables are cooked. Young tender leaves of spinach taste delicious in salads. If your family is tired of plain slaw, team the cabbage with pineapple orange or apple for a change.

fight for LOVE

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO.

VI READ the sentence again and again, until tears blinded her. There it was, in the Star sports section, directly under the heading, "Cliff's Corner, by Cliff Craine." Thousands had seen it by now, in the most widely read sports column in the state.

She couldn't understand how Cliff could do this to her, how he could intimate, in print, that the fight was fixed. She had been disturbed when he left so unceremoniously the night before. It wasn't like him at all. And she had been puzzled when he was so strangely silent in the car while they were driving from school.

She recalled how, after he had gone, Milly brought her the plaid coat, and said she had found it in a box at the apartment door, when she returned from an errand at the drug store. The coat had not been cleaned. In fact, there were soiled spots on the collar. The girls had discussed the strange episode of the kidnapped coat, and couldn't make sense out of it.

Now VI debated what to do. This new development was a terrible blow to her. It not only imperiled her investment in Jed, but it meant the end of her friendship with Cliff.

She liked his gruff, informal manner, his frankness and his outlook on life. But that was all in the past now. Again she felt a sense of loneliness, and she was glad to hear Milly's hurried footsteps in the hall as she returned from town.

When Milly came into the living room, VI showed her the column. As Milly read it, her eyes opened wide in anger.

"Why, the big guy," she said, "something screwy about the fight! There's something screwy about him. Let's go and see him. We'll have a showdown, and he'll eat those words."

VI shook her head sadly. "It isn't that easy," she said. "Something is wrong some place. Cliff had a reason for printing that."

"What's the matter with you?" Milly demanded. "What's wrong? Where? Not with Jed? He and I fought like tigers—but he's on the level. They'll never get him to go for any fix. I'm sure of it."

"I wish I was half as sure," VI said.

"There's only one thing to do,"

Uncle Ray's Column

WHEN someone says that a thing is "as light as air," he means that it has very little weight.

Air does have some weight, and this fact is important in aviation. A balloon rises because it has a bag with gas which is lighter than air.

Let us suppose that we have a gas bag in the shape of a hollow ball, 80 feet in diameter. The air needed to fill it would weigh about 4000 pounds. If we filled the bag with gas weighing one fourth as much as air, the difference, or lifting power, would be about 3000 pounds.

The lifting power would pull the bag and basket upward. In addition, the balloon could lift a dozen human beings.

IF AIR WEIGHED nothing, the power of gravity would fall to hold it around the earth. No man or plant or beast could live without air, or something like it.

Air is needed to support the wings of airplanes. There are heights which airplanes never reach because the air is too thin. Rockets, on the other hand, should be able to travel far beyond the limits of the earth's atmosphere.

AIR AT SEA LEVEL has a pressure of 14 pounds and 11 ounces to the square inch. To estimate the total weight of the atmosphere, we need to find the number of square inches on the earth's surface. Then we multiply the figure by the average air pressure.

The height of the atmosphere has been learned by measuring the altitude of the northern lights. Very thin air appears to exist as much as 800 miles above the ground.
